Laurie Zimmerman Named Maryland Dairy Princess

EVA MARTIN
Maryland Correspondent

FREDERICK, Md. — Laurie Zimmerman of Frederick was crowned the 1992 Maryland Dairy Princess at the 31st coronation held in the Grand Ballroom of the Holiday Inn. She is the 19-year-old daughter of Kenneth L. and Shirley R. Zimmerman.

Laurie is a sophomore at Frederick Community College with plans to transfer to the University of Maryland and major in agriculture economics. She was also the recipient of the $200 Francis Kepler Scholarship.

Milking, calves, and fieldwork are her chores on their family farm. She is also responsible for the family show string. Her personal herd consists of 24 registered Holsteins and Jerseys, which she shows at county and state fairs. Competing on the state and national level in the dairy quiz bowl contests, and serving as Maryland State Jersey Queen and Frederick County Farm Queen are among her many accomplishments. She says her goal is "to promote the dairy farm with pride."

First runner-up went to Christine Masser, Washington County Dairy Princess from Hagerstown. Five other contestants, who were

Sunnybend Takes York Championship

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — A senior 3-year-old exhibited at the York Holstein Show by June Boyer truly lived up to her registry name.

Sunnybend Oh Be Happy Kit B made the Tom Boyer family of York happy indeed when she won the champion, best udder, and best bred-and-owned titles at the annual county Holstein competition. More than 100 head of cattle turned out for the last week's show at the York Fairgrounds.

Judge Mike Hart, Canastota, N.Y., lauded Happy's size and stylishness and praised her quality, well-veined udder. Owned by June Boyer, the Tiho Kit Builder daughter scored VG-87 with an Excellent mammary on her first classification as a 2-year-old.

Oh Be Happy completed her first lactation with just under 21,000 milk; after recent freshening, she put 115 pounds into the pail on her first DHIA test. On her pedigree side, four of the closest

Tom Boyer, second from right, exhibited Sunnybend Farm's senior three-year-old to the York Holstein show championship. Reserve champion honors went to the five-year-old from Coredale Farms, with Roy Thompson at the halter. Offering congratulations were dairy princess Shannon Doll and show judge Mike Hart.

Glenside Dairy Hosts Tioga Farm-City

C.J. HOUGHTALING
Tioga Co. Correspondent

MIDDLEBURY CENTER (Tioga Co.) — Emerald fields of corn, alfalfa, and oats rippled beneath blue skies as wagons full of visitors bumped along on the newest road at Glenside Dairy.

Just hours before, in a last-minute effort to make the tractor-drawn wagon tour run more efficiently, the road had been built through a freshly harvested field of peas.

Another tour, by horse-drawn wagons, took folks into the woods where they learned about the gypsy moth and how a corkscrew-type tool is used to bore into a tree to test the tree's age.

The reason for the tours was Farm-City Day, sponsored by the Tioga County Rural Development Committee. Hosting the event

Farmland Preservation Begins In Westmoreland

DAVID HIEBERT
Westmoreland Co. Correspondent

GREENSBURG (Westmoreland Co.) — A new farmland preservation program is beginning here.

"We want to help all the people whose hearts are in the land. They don't want farmland to be developed," said Betty Reefer, farmland preservation specialist with the Westmoreland Conservation District. "But with the limited funds that are available, the board

New York & Philadelphia Frozen Egg Report

Tuesday, July 28, 1992

The market tone was generally steady but cautious. Trading was limited and sellers found it more difficult to get needed values for finished product. Buyers attempted to lock in long range deals at attractive price levels. Raw materials were usually readily available with several further processors concerned about declining quality. Floor stocks were fully adequate to ample.

NORTHEAST BROILER/FRYER PARTS. FEDERAL-STATE

Trucklot buying interest was cautious and limited to immediate needs with very little interest in additional product. Some boneless skinless breasts traded in the 2.33 - 2.37 price range but most new bookings and asking prices trended lower. Line run breasts were readily available at several locations but buyers were very cautious and limited deliveries to commitments only. Yellow skin legs were fully adequate to ample for the very light demand. Thighs and drumsticks were at least adequate at current prices. Leg quarters were burdensome and traded at competitive prices. Wings were forced to clear the market at lower prices.

MOVE MORE LIFT MORE DO MORE!

The new L-Series Kubota tractors are designed to finish every light construction job with power, ease and improved working efficiency.

Increased front loader lifting capacities help you move more material and lift heavier loads. A powerful hydraulic system results in shorter cycle times.

You'll also be able to do more with the compact Kubota L-Series – 23-49 PTO HP, tight turning radius and 4WD. And the innovative "Ever-Clutch"– a first-of-a-kind wet clutch that doubles clutch life and even comes with its own warranty.

Demanding construction jobs demand more options. The L-Series has them, including a hefty 3-point hitch, a variety of performance matched implements and industrial tires.

Come see how much more you can do with a Kubota.

Cat Milk

Alpo Petfoods is reported to be unveiling a new beverage milk product to the nation's food retailers--canned milk for cats. In the June issue of The Milkweed, a private milk marketing report from Wisconsin reports that research shows that nearly 30 percent of the nation's household pet cats get milk from time to time. So in a few months Alpo will introduce a 5-oz. can of milk for cats. This cat beverage will be lactose-reduced, to alleviate the digestive intolerance some felines show for the lacteal secretion of the bovine species.

Suggested retail price: about 50 cents per 5-oz. can.

The stuff will be a bit expensive. At retail, the estimated price of approximately 50 cents for a five ounce container works out to $3.20 per quart or $148.80 per hundred pounds.

There has been no word from the federal government if any dairy cooperatives have requested a special federal milk marketing order designation C-1 for raw milk sold for pet food. 1-C as in "Cat Milk".

To Control Mice In Order To Control SE

Mice and Salmonella enteritidis (SE) seem to go hand in hand.

In an early version of a poultry disease book, the author stated if you have an SE problem, you also have a mouse or rat problem.

As we study SE outbreaks in egg flocks, the data is suggesting that mice and rats are probably a major player in SE. I am amazed, after all the meetings held this year on mice and rat control in poultry houses, there are many poultry producers who have not started an aggressive rodent control program.

Each and every poultry producer needs to launch an all-out war against every mouse and rat on their farm. The goal is no living rodent. This involves killing all vegetation around the chicken house; removing all litter, spilled feed, and storage piles around the chicken house; closing up all holes around the foundation; and placing bait stations where you see rodent activity.

If you need help in developing a rodent control program or identifying rodent activity, talk with you poultry service person. They will be able to help you develop your program.

To control SE, we need to have every poultry producer launching war on rodents. In addition to helping to control SE, a rodent control program will help to improve feed conversion, reduce building repair and maintenance costs, reduce electrical problems, and could reduce your insurance costs.

At least one insurance company is exploring the idea of reducing the premiums to producers you have an on going rodent control program. Now is the time to declare war on rodents and start your rodent control program.

To Practice Soil Conservation

Farming involves good soil stewardship. One of the reasons a farm stays in the same family for many generations is good soil stewardship.

By protecting the soil, we are insuring its productivity.

We need to remember the lessons or art of farming taught by our grandfathers. I still remember my grandfather saying, "If you treat the soil right, the soil will treat you right."

For our family in Adams County, that meant crop rotations, cover crops, soil tests, liming, fertilizing, and never working the soil when it was wet.

Farming has intensified, but good soil stewardship is still very important. As we learn more about crop nutrition, the nutrient value of manure, the effects of farming practices on water quality, and effects of soil erosion on aquatic life, farmers need to continue their soil conservation practices.

By adopting these practices, we are insuring the productivity of our soil.

If you need assistance in developing a conservation plan for your farm, contact your local Soil Conservation Service.

Also, a nutrient management plan needs to be put in place, which your local cooperative extension can help you develop. Now is a good time to walk over your fields and review your conservation practices.

To Improve Your Herd's Genetics

Dr. Gene Freeman, Iowa State University, recommends the following ways to improve your dairy herd's genetics:

- Have your herd on DHIA test.
- Use sires that have been proven through the AI selection process and purchase as much production potential as you can afford.
- The primary emphasis in sire selection should be maximizing production of the components that contribute most to your milk check.
- Forced culling of problem cows should be held to less than 50 percent of the cows removed to provide more opportunity to selectively cull cows for low production, poor genetic potential, etc.
- When selecting to improve a trait such as type or calving ease, select from bulls first chosen for production and then for the traits you want to improve.

ARE YOU IN TRAINING?
August 2, 1992

Background Scripture:
1 Timothy 4.
Devotional Reading:
2 Peter 1:3-11.

There's an old saying to the effect that "Practice makes perfect." Actually, practice may not make us perfect, but it at least brings us closer to fulfilling our potential. When I was a boy I took piano lessons. I wanted to learn to play the piano and that meant, not only taking lessons once a week, but practicing every day. After several years, I resisted practicing and eventually I stopped taking lessons. Practice had not made me "perfect," but it had helped me to learn to play the piano to a certain degree.

One of the reasons I lost my interest in the piano was my growing obsession with football. (My third grade teacher once said—a bit unkindly, I think—" I hope some day you break your fool neck playing football.") But, as it had been with the piano, I found that learning to play football took a lot of training and practice. I hardly achieved perfection in football, but I learned enough to enable me to play for several years in high school.

NOT BY TALENT ALONE

What I learned through these experiences with the piano and football is that learning to do anything with some degree of competence requires training and practice, even for those who are specially gifted. Later, as a sportswriter for our local newspaper, I observed some natural athletes who didn't make the grade athletically because they tried to get by on talent alone.

Training is even more intensive and complicated today than it was when I was a youth. People spend lots of money, time and effort to perfect themselves at jogging, golfing, tennis, playing a musical instrument, and even running for political office. There seems to be a general understanding that if you are looking to excellence in any field, the more you put into training, the more you will excel.

Isn't it interesting, then, to consider that many of us try to live as disciples of Jesus Christ with as little training and practice as possible? Some years ago when I was pastor in Mohnton, Pennsylvania, I was speaking with a teenager about joining our Confirmation Class so that he could join the church. When I outlined the classes he'd have to attend and the study that would be required, he said, "Why should I go through all of that, when I can wait a few years and join as an adult...without knowing anything?"

MISSING PRACTICE

I had to admit there was a good deal of logic in that. Lots of people I have known have assumed that one can be a Christian without any training or practice at all. The fact is, even more than in the arts or athletics, discipleship is a lifelong process of learning and practice. The only way we can excel in it is to practice, practice, practice.The great Polish pianist, Ignace Paderewski, said that if he missed practicing one dya, he knew it. If he missed two days, the critics knew it, and, if he missed three or more days, everyone knew it? That's the way it is with Christian living: if our practice is not regular, sooner or later everyone knows it. Just as I found that joining the team alone did not make me a football player, so, joining the church doesn't make me a disciple of Jesus Christ.

Just think how much time and effort we may put into our tennis game, or spend on the golf course trying to reduce our handicap. That's O.K.—I'm all for excellence—but is it not even more important for us to learn to excel in our discipleship? Like the rest of our material possessions, when God calls us home we will have to leave our golf clubs and tennis rackets behind. That's why the writer of 1 Timothy admonishes his readers: "Train yourself in godliness; for while bodily training is of some value, godliness is of value in every way, as it holds promise for the present life and also for the life to come" (4:7,8).

Practice, anyone?

Oklahoma City Feeder Cattle

Oklahoma City

Wednesday July 29, 1992

Compared with last week: Feeder cattle and calves steady to $2.00 lower; feeder market improved towards steady side since noon Monday. Initial demand light for all classes but improved considerably to moderate to good as cattle futures more optimistic than expected following last Friday's C.O.F. report. Weigh conditions uneven gaunt to full. Flesh condition of feeders attractive, average to slightly thin. Quality of supply not as good as past few weeks, plain to average with modest end attractive.

Pasture conditions remain excellent throughout this trade territory with good thundershower activity. Slaughter cows steady to $1.00 lower, Utilities at full decline. Slaughter bulls steady. Demand moderate for slaughter cattle. Receipts this week 7,660; last week 12,224; last year 7,846. Supply consisted of 73% yearlings over 600 lbs.; 21% calves; 6% cows and bulls. Bulk prices follow; weighted average prices in parenthesis:

Glenside Dairy

from their home were Craig and LaRena Owlett and Craig's parents and co-owners, Dennis (Denny) and Arletta Owlett.

Preparing for this day had not been left to the Owletts alone. Hordes of relatives, friends, and neighbors, along with authorities from the Soil Conservation Service (SCS), Penn State Cooperative Extension, Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service, Department of Environmental Resources, and more pitched in to give the place a spit-and-polish look, organize some of the events, or man exhibits.

That the combined efforts paid off was evident in the smiles on faces as the spectators wandered reluctantly back to the parking lot at the end of the day.

Nearly 2,000 people attended Farm-City Day to see, in addition to the tours, a petting zoo, sheep shearing, Christmas tree shearing, chicks hatching, wool spinning, old, new and toy machinery displays, and participate in contests for throwing hay bales, splicing wire and milking cows. Even the little ones had a chance to test their strength in a pedal tractor pull.

Erick Coolidge, who hosted the first Tioga County Farm-City Day last year at his farm, was pleased with the spectator turn-out. Commenting on the weather's cooperation as a contributing factor in the day's success as opposed to the sporadic rain showers of last year, he said the activities were well-organized and farmers could be pleased with how they were represented.

Gerry Carlsen, a homemaker in Middlebury Center, formerly a 5 1/2 year resident of Florida, among other parts of the country, thought Farm-City Day was "Great!" Being her first time to such an event, she was amazed at how many cars and people were there. The size of the Owlett's milking parlour (holding 10 cows) interested her, but she thought the rides through the fields and woods were "absolutely fantastic." She and her husband Russ are definitely planning to go next year.

Judging from the long, patient lines of people waiting their turn to board the wagons, the field tour was the most popular event. A total of 81 trips were made. Scheduled to end at 5 p.m., the last wagon made it back to the loading dock at 6:45.

The first to greet the visitors on the tour was the solitary sentry of a scarecrow waving "hello" from his post in the field.

Then the wagons rolled over a sharp dip in the trail and came to a halt. From the shade of a stand of trees, Howard Rutledge of the SCS office in Wellsboro stepped forward to explain the diversion ditch and contour strip farming methods that the Owletts practice to help stop soil erosion and keep nutrients in the ground for better crop results.

Further up the hill, the group feasted their eyes on the panoramic view encompassing four different townships, with mountains more than 20 miles away.

Upon approaching a stone wall six feet tall in places, oo's and ahh's of appreciation for the masonary craftmanship that went into making the magnificent structure could be heard over the tractor.

Tossing bales of hay isn't as easy as it looks. In a mear 36.96 seconds Mark Jannelli and David Peet, both of Wellsboro, worked up a sweat while competing in the contest.

Dustin Butler, son of Lorry and Mary Butler, grinds his muscles into third gear as he wins the pedal tractor pull for the nine-year-old boys division with a distance of 21 feet, 5 inches.

Dennis's brother Lloyd waited for the tractor driver to cut the engine before delving into the wall's 100 year-old history and trivia, such as: how the inside was hollow for about three feet up from the ground and that even though it snaked for seven miles up hills and down into steep gulleys, each stone was laid at level to keep portions from sliding away.

Children were amused by a wooden cutout of Humpty Dumpty with a "devil-may-care grin" perched on top.

What had always been last on the list of "things to do" for the Owletts but had always been a "someday project" was finally completed for Farm-City Day. Brush was cleared from a cemetery dating back more than 200 years on the farm.

Tour guides on each wagon explained how the William French family, for whom the area was named, had owned a farm on what is now Owlett property but were wiped out by scarlet fever and buried there. Their buildings had been burned, too, to keep the disease from spreading. A large lilac bush is all that's left to mark the original foundation.

Among the trees and grape vines, marble tombstones, their carvings faded by years of acid rain, sprouted from the creeping myrtle and leaned haphazardly without foundations. A new American flag fluttered in its marker at the grave of a Revolutionary War Minuteman.

Clair Zerby won a wrestling match with a ram who did not want to get sheared. The uncooperative big horn sheep was brought in from a near-by game farm.

As the wagons rolled on to the conclusion of the tour, a splendid view of the barns and house reflected the pride the Owletts have in their dairy operation. Fresh paint, new fences, even flower beds among the tent canopies and exhibits welcomed the guests with eye-appealing, down-home comfort.

Senator Roger Madigan, who participated in the opening ceremonies, said he enjoyed himself immensely. Elaborating on the need for the public to be aware of how hard a farmer works, and seeing, firsthand, exactly what he does, Madigan said, "It (Farm-City Day) is a much needed event and I'd like to see it continue next year."

Perhaps the best thing about Farm-City Day was having so much entertainment offered for free. What better way to spend an afternoon? Throughout the day, plenty of door prizes were given away, too. The only costs to the public came by way of refreshments. Nonprofit organizations sold ice cream, hot dogs, barbecued chicken, milkshakes, ice tea and lemonade.

Not a commercially advertised exhibit or for-profit vendor was in sight.

"To keep it (Farm-City Day) a non-commercial day is so important," said LaRena, "because the public needs an event where they can have a good time without having to spend money for anything other than food."

Craig added, "The sponsors who brought in the exhibits are the ones making it possible to have this event free." Indeed, an event this elaborate would not have been possible if the sponsors had not been willing to donate their time, in addition to the cost of bringing in their exhibits, with their names listed in the itinerary brochure as their only form of compensation.

Coolidge agreed. "To help defray some of the costs," he said, "I'd like to see a milk can placed somewhere on the grounds next year to encourage public donations."

More than the pigeons got a birds-eye-view of Farm-City Day festivities. Curt Owlett, brother of Craig, climbed to the top of a silo to get this shot.

Glenside Dairy: Farm For History Buffs

History buffs, as well as farmers, can find Glenside Dairy an interesting place to visit. From revolutionary farming practices to the grave of a Revolutionary War Minuteman (see accompanying article), visitors have been coming to the farm co-owned by Dennis (Denny) and Arletta Owlett and their son and daughter-in-law, Craig and LaRena Owlett for years. Most recently, the farm was host to nearly 2000 guests in one day. Although the historical viewpoint may have made much of Farm-City Day more interesting to non-farmers, perhaps the primary reason Glenside Dairy was selected to host the event was the farming methods the Owletts practice.

Preventing soil erosion and stream pollution seem to be the main concerns at Glenside Dairy.

This year, the Owletts are trying several new methods geared to cut down on polluting the creek that flows past the farm. Incorporating a management program from the SCS, eaves troughs attached to the barn have been piped into a tile drainage system to prevent excess runoff from the barnyard.

Another plan that will be put into action soon involves a sod waterway, or grass filter strips, protected from livestock by a high tensile fence on both sides of the creek.

While the Owletts usually plant their crops in contour strips, for Farm-City Day, they altered the plan slightly to have narrower strips in one area so wagon tours could give the general public a better view of how the overall process works with nature.

"One field we replanted to corn for the Farm-City Day when normally we would have reseeded it back to hay this year, but otherwise, things stayed pretty much the same," said Craig.

At one point on the wagon tour of the fields, Howard Rutledge from the Soil Conservation Service (SCS) office in Wellsboro, pointed out to the groups of visitors five-year-old alfalfa fields, still abundantly healthy, as proof that the Owletts had taken excellent care to keep necessary nutrients from washing out of the soil.

Organic material comes from a manure pit that has been in use since 1978. That this fertilizer is not used until the fields can be accessed in the spring assures of less runoff from melting snow throughout the winter when the ground is too frozen to prevent proper absorption.

Crops grown at Glenside Dairy include about 175 acres of corn, 25 acres of oats, 100 acres of alfalfa, and another 100 acres of mixed hay. The harvests are stored in silos as haylage, corn silage, and high moisture corn.

Three times a day, the cows are fed a total mixed according to their milk productions: 60 or 80 pounds. A purchased protein supplement is used at the rate of 10 ton a month.

The program has had satisfying results. The 105 Holstein milkers have a rolling herd average of 19,750 pounds with a 3.7 percent butterfat.

The Owletts were the first farmers in the county to have a milking parlor. According to Craig, Uncle Lloyd, (Denny's brother) had purchased the farm in the early 1950s. Denny bought a partnership in the farm some ten years later. An entrepreneur who foresaw bulk tanks as the wave of the future, Lloyd became a dealer for a company and sold a milking parlor to a local farmer. But the farmer hadn't bothered to apply for a loan for the parlor until the day it was to be delivered. When the bank turned him down, the company, faced with a 40 percent loss on the parlor's return, gave Lloyd the option to purchase it for his own farm at a greatly reduced price. The parlor has basically stayed the same over the years, with only some of the equipment replaced or updated as it wore out.

Other changes on the farm, however, have included Denny buying Lloyd's half of the farm in the late 1960s and Craig buying into partnership with his dad in 1976. Denny and Arletta moved off the farm, turning the house over to Craig and his family in 1981.

Craig's brothers, Curt, Chris, Chad, and Ray, have worked the farm, too, throughout the years, although they are now involved with other endeavors.

Craig's two sons, Wade, 11, and Clint, 9, help out in a variety of tasks. The boys trade off every other week to jockey the cows into the parlor. Both help their mom feed calves and Clint sweeps the aisles. During the week it is not their turn to jockey cows, they help LaRena do household chores.

Do Craig and LaRena think their boys will one day take over the family farm?

"They're still pretty young," LaRena said. "You always hope they will, but..."

As if picking up his wife's train of thought, Craig interjected. "If the economy stays like it is, it will be difficult to farm by the time they reach that point in their lives."

For Clint, the answer was a resounding, "No."

Wade, however, giving the question some thought, replied, "I haven't decided yet."

winners of their area contests, competed for the state crown: Jennifer Brenneman, Allegany/ Garrett Dairy Princess from Accident; Kristen Archer, Baltimore/ Harford Dairy Princess of Pylesville; Marie Speak, Carroll County Dairy Princess from Taneytown; Beverly Collier, Lower Shore Dairy Princess from Easton was awarded best skit and Miss Congeniality; and Amy Savage, South Central Dairy Princess, from Germantown.

The audience became acquainted with the various contestants through a slide presentation set to country music showing their various activities, promotions and work on their dairy farms. Each contestant presented a dairy promotion skit which they will use during the coming year in schools, shopping malls and store promotions.

Emcee for the evening was Jeff Myers, owner of Delmyr Holsteins, of Westminster. Judging the contest were Julia Myers, Chairman of the Franklin County Dairy Promotion Committee, of St. Thomas, Pa.; Deiter Kreig, editor of Farmshine Magazine, Lititz, Pa.; Scott Deputy, Sales and Service Representative for Atlantic Breeders, of East Berlin, Pa. During the judges deliberation, Shock Wave presented Barber Shop music.

In her farewell speech, Jenell Rinehart, 1991 Maryland Dairy Princess expressed gratitude for the opportunity to be born and raised on a farm to witness a sunrise over the corn fields and see the miracle of a new calf being born. The sorrows of crop failure and one of her cows dying were also part of this growing experience. She felt her most important accomplishment was "to be able to serve as dairy princess this past year and fight for our dairy industry and what we believe in".

Jenell dedicated the last milk toast of her reign "to the hardest working people I've known... and to the dairy cow who produced the product that is our livelihood".

PREVENT PIGLET CRUSHING

BSM Model 90 Farrowing Crate

GALVANIZED!

Constructed from heavy gauge materials this crate is designed to reduce crushing, with sow comfort in mind. The bowed bottom bars makes for a comfortable 33" crate width when the sow lays down, yet the adjustable anti-crush bars eliminates the sow from carelessly dropping in the piglets.
This movement restriction does not hamper the sow as she lays down, or wants to stand up, as the bars slide up and out of her way.

Conference To Highlight Water Lessons

The water project analyzed groundwater sites in Churchtown and Lincoln. Here, project associate Jeff Stoltzfus lifts a cover to a well monitoring site at the Clark Stauffer farm in Lincoln.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Highlights of the lessons learned in the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Rural Clean Water Program will be discussed at a conference scheduled for August 6.

The program will be held at the Farm and Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Road, from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

During the 10-year RCWP project, the effects of using agricultural best management practices to control nonpoint source pollution were studied. The practices studied included nutrient management and pipe outlet terraces.

The results of extensive ground and surface water monitoring done in conjunction with implementing these practices will be reported by staff of the United States Geological Survey, who did the monitoring.

Penn State extension staff will discuss nutrient management principles and educational strategies used to implement nutrient management in the Upper Conestoga Watershed.

Putting agricultural nonpoint source pollution in perspective and control of agricultural nonpoint source pollution will be discussed by Soil Conservation Service personnel. A farmer's perspective will be provided by Aaron Stauffer, owner of one of the farms where groundwater monitoring was conducted.

To register, contact Leon Ressler, Penn State Cooperative Extenison, (717)394-6851.

ABS Reopens For Tours

DEFOREST, Wis. — American Breeders Service of DeForest, Wisconsin has announced plans to reopen one of their production facilities for public tours beginning August 4.

The reopening of Heritage Hall will take place in conjunction with the opening of Valiant Hall, ABS's new world visitor center.

Tours are to be conducted at ABS headquarters by appointment only from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Monday through Friday. Appointments may be made by contacting Marie Rindsig, ABS communications specialist, at (608)846-3721.

ABS was required to discontinue public tours of its production facilities in 1989 in order to comply with bull health regulations required by international markets. Although one production barn will be open for tours, ABS cannot guarantee visitors will be able to see any particular bull. Inspection will be limited to the bulls housed in Heritage Hall.

ABS is owned by W. R. Grace & Co. - Conn., and markets dairy and beef semen and related products throughout the United States

Making ARIS Easier To Use Is One Task Facing Pa. DHIA

FOCUS
Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association
Management Information For Barn Use

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Users of the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association (DHIA) Agricultural Records Information Service (ARIS) had a chance to air their difficulties in using the on-line computer information service last week at the Berks County Ag Center.

ARIS representatives took notes about the difficulties to consider ways to correct them. During the discussion, the representatives spoke about several planned improvements to the ARIS system. They also spoke about the soon-to-be-introduced DairyComp 305 software, which will be available to ARIS users to help them more readily obtain and understand ARIS data.

The planned changes to the ARIS system include:

- Reconstructing the logon procedures, through what is called a "script," to allow users to get through various expensive and time-consuming procedures to get the data they need.
- Research into finding ways to allow 40 extension offices and users of the Apple MacIntosh computers to more readily connect to the IBM-based mainframe computer at the ARIS headquarters in University Park.
- Placing emphasis on the economics, rather than just performance or production data, involved in successfully managing dairy herds.
- Introducing items such as lactation graphs, adjusted corrected milk, and other critical needs of consultants, nutritionists, veterinarians, and farmers to ARIS.
- Improving accessibility by making it easier and quicker to get on-line with ARIS.
- Scheduling future workshops to help farmers read and understand ARIS reports. DHIA wants to set up a series of user meetings in the future to continuously address problems that may affect specific areas and specific users.

Representatives of PaHDIA's ARIS program were on hand to address users of the computer system at the Berks Ag Center last week. From left, Meg Potter, ARIS field representative; Don Duncan, DHIA board member; and Pat Toretti, ARIS administrator.

One of the ARIS users at the meeting, Phoebe Bitler from Vista Grande Farm in Fleetwood, said ARIS is a "very cumbersome program." She said many users simply gave up out of frustration. According to Bitler, Visa Grande uses a software program called CowSearch, from Vermont Software, available for about $2,000, which takes the data from ARIS and puts it into a form that is easier to understand.

Bitler said CowSearch has been an invaluable aid to her farm.

Don Duncan, a board member of the PaDHIA, said that the ARIS main menu has been so cluttered that users see so much information, "you wonder what you really want," he said. "People didn't know what they wanted or what to ask for. The information is all there, but it's a problem to find out how to get what you want."

Pat Toretti, ARIS administrator, said that she is working on ways to allow users to more readily access parts of the system more important to them. However, according to Toretti, ARIS may remain only a provider of the data, and users may have to invest in several "downloading" software, such as CowSearch, for specific needs. Other downloading software includes DairyComp 305 (from Valley Agricultural Software), DairyPlan (from Westfalia), SoftFlex (SoftFlex Corp.), DairyTrak (from Doane), ACS Computer Services (Gene Lyman), or others to help read and interpret specific data.

Brian Reed, of Hutchison, Trayer and Reed Veterinary Associates, Denver, said that he is looking for system where "you push two buttons, and that's it," and that can help locate and isolate possible herd health problems.

Also, the veterinarians and feed consultants want the data to be updated in a quicker fashion. If combined with the possibility of "flagging" possible problems on the herds ahead of time, then much of the preliminary work is finished and they can be of more help to dairy farmers.

It was noted that the information and the reports from ARIS are very good and well accepted. Making this information more user friendly is the goal of these improvements.

Judges Say Lebanon Dairy Animals, Facilities Excellent

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Judges of the Lebanon Area Fair colored breed and youth Holstein dairy shows said Tuesday that they had probably never seen a better presentation of quality animals in a youth show.

They also praised the new exhibition barn as one of the best showing facilities.

The Lebanon Fair Exposition Corp.'s show building debuted at this year's Lebanon Area Fair. The 250-foot long, 100-foot wide building is built with a red brick fascade and three cupola's sporting trailing flags.

The roof of the building is supported with large, floor-to-ceiling steel arched trestles, offering a wide open interior. The white interior roof and walls are insulated with a material similar in appearance to what is used on free stall curtains.

The building offers a white interior, good natural ventilation, good lighting system and a strong, quality, low impedance sound system with remote microphone capability.

Although portable bleachers were not ready for the fair, there is to be elevated seating at future events.

The ring of the barn is formed with sturdy portable rails, which could probably hold a couple of tethered cows. However, officials prohibit that practice, since the railing wasn't manufactured with the intent of securing show cattle.

Exhibitors also commented favorably on the new facility.

However, the judges also praised the animals and their owners.

The judges named Stephanie Wagner's 3-year-old Holstein, Ju-Vindale Beautician Bev, as supreme champion cow of the youth shows.

Several years ago, in order to reward the 4-H and FFA dairy cattle show participants, the fair leadership opted to include a supreme cow class to the show, to provide further reward for those youth.

Over the years, the youth shows became overshadowed by the open shows. The addition of the supreme class at Lebanon follows the lead set by the state Farm Show Commission when it created an all-breed supreme class in the dairy competitions.

The added class competition has apparently worked both at the state level for adults and at the county level for youth.

At the Lebanon Fair, the Holstein youth show and the colored breed shows, youth and open divisions, are held early in the week, while the open Holstein show is held late in the week.

Taking reserve champion Holstein in the 4-H division was Peter Sonnen. Junior champion went to Bryan Hostetter and reserve junior champion went to Darin Nolt.

In the Holstein FFA, Dave Lentz showed the senior and grand champion while Kevin Bomgardner showed the reserve senior and grand champion.

The junior FFA champion Holstein was showed by Kevin Bomgardner and the reserve champion was shown by Scott Nolt.

In the Ayrshire breed, the open grand champion was an aged cow

(Turn to Page A35)

From the left, sponsor Dale Maulfair presents the supreme champion dairy animal trophy to Stephanie Wagner whose 3-year-old not only took grand champion Holstein, but also helped her edge out tight competition in the best bred and owned competition of the show. Also shown is the Lebanon County dairy promotion royalty, princess Angie Baker and little miss Janelle Zimmerman, and the Lebanon Area Fair Queen Allison Martin.

Patti Maulfair receives the grand champion trophy from Lebanon County Alternate Dairy Princess Darlene Habecker. The aged cow is Maulfair Acres Oracle Dena.

Farmland Preservation

The aim of the program is to keep farmland from being converted to other uses.

Betty is a staff person for the Westmoreland County Farmland Preservation program. She has helped process the first 26 applications for purchase of agricultural easement. When purchased, the agricultural easement will prevent the land from being used for non-ag purposes.

At this point, a board of nine county residents is processing those applications. At their last meeting the board could not conclude any offers to purchase, though they had requested appraisals on six properties.

This board has been appointed by Westmoreland County commissoners. The commissioners also name replacements as needed.

The first round of applications came from the program's annual January 1-February 15 registration period. A second round of applications is being accepted from July 1 through August 15.

Westmoreland County has 1335 farms, according to the Westmoreland Chamber of Commerce. Those farms generate $43 million in sales of crops and livestock each year. One goal of this program is to preserve the vital role of agriculture in the economy.

The land which sustains this production is under increasing threat. Nationwide, the total land in farms has been reduced from 1.2 million acres in 1950 to about .9 million in 1975, according to World Book Encyclopedia. In Pennsylvania, farm acreage declined by about 5 percent (or 431,000 acres) between 1982 and 1987, according to the Census of Agriculture.

Betty believes that the same trend threathens Westmoreland agriculture. In addition to the direct economic effects, people near farmlands benefit from having produce grown locally and enjoy the habitat for wildlife.

The beginnings of this farmland preservation effort were set up when a $100 million bond issue passed a statewide referendum in Novemeber, 1987. About a year after that vote, the statewide laws for purchasing conservation easements or development rights of agricultural lands came into effect. Rules for beginning agricultural security areas (ASA) were set up as part of Act 43, a statewide preservation program.

The ASA does not restrict land use, but provides some special consideration when local ordinances are enacted. One key feature of the Act is that local people must start the process to set up an ASA.

The Westmoreland preservation program, like all counties in the state, had to submit its local program to the state for approval. Three key people developed this plan: Wesley Gordon of the Soil Conservation Service, John Lohr of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, and Greg Phillips of the Westmoreland Conservation District. Their plan was adopted in October 1991.

A map, included in their plan, showed that most of Westmoreland County has important agricultural areas. Differentiated as less important agriculturally were some mountainous portions in the east, heavily industrial areas in the west, and the heavily populated lands near the county seat of Greensburg.

Public meetings to introduce the program were conducted in five areas of the county and notices were sent to townships that might include agricultural security areas.

"A lot of the work," according to Betty, "is to convince people that it's a safe thing to do. Once they hear that others have done it, many will feel it's OK."

The first step is up to the land owner. Applications are accepted during two six-week periods: January 1-February 15 and July 1-August 15.

These applications are evaluated and rated by the Preservation staff with technical advice and information from the Soil Conservation Service and consultation of soil maps and aerial photos. Photos going back five years help to judge rate of residential development in an area. This rating is only one of about a dozen factors in evaluating an application site.

The Preservation Board then decides which farms to evaluate. Real estate appraisers help determine the easement purchase value by estimating the difference between the land's farm value and its highest price for some other use. The Board then offers to buy easement rights.

The land owner may choose to accept or reject the offer. These various negotiating steps could put some pressure on the system, Betty thinks because the allocated funds need to be spent by December 31, 1992.

If both county parties agree on the price and other conditions, the final approval for the purchase comes from the 17-member State Agricultural Preservation Board. Easements in perpetuity insure that the land would then remain in agricultural use. No one has asked for the 25-year easement option.

With the current program just finishing its second application period, Betty expects preservation interest to expand. As of June 1992, 15 townships have created 68,803 acres of agricultural security areas. Seven others have areas pending.

Since this program is only one of 13 legislative attempts at farmland retention in Pennsylvania, interest in keeping the land in production should remain high.

According to "Citizens' ViewPoint" published in 1990 by Penn State's College of Agriculture, 7 out of 10 people in Pennsylvania want preservation to have a higher priority. And it seems that people are willing to pay for it. Currently a new tax of $.02 per pack of cigarettes will go toward farmland preservation.

Westmoreland Preservation has also applied to four foundations for private money to buy easements. County funds brought into the program, and grants, if successful, will be quadrupled by state money. Administration and publicity are covered by county funds and a grant from the Mellon Foundation.

You may pick up an application for farmland preservation at the Westmoreland Conservation District office at 932 St. Clair Way (just west of Westmoreland Mall), Rt. 30 East, Greensburg, PA 15601. Call Betty Reefer, preservation specialist, at (412)837-5271. Stop and talk to Betty or others in the USDA or Soil Conservation Service at the Westmoreland County Fair, during Ag Technology Day on August 27.

Betty Reefer, farmland preservation specialist in Westmoreland County, is looking forward to the first easement purchase in a farmland perservation program. She works with a nine-member board of directors that was appointed by the Westmoreland County Commissioners. "All the 26 farms on the applications are nice farms and should be preserved," she said, "but with limited funds, the board has some tough decisions."

Controls compaction, rough fields, soil erosion & residue management problems.

Adjustable front disc gangs cut the residue. Auto-reset shanks penetrate the soil 8 to 20" to break up compaction. The rear discs break clods, incorporate residue and level fields. To leave more surface residue and control erosion, raise the gang. Easy manual or hydraulic adjustments change disc cutting depth.

Now there's one way to manage surface residue and compaction problems... stop in and we'll talk.

five dams were Excellents.

Reserve champion honors went to the beautifully-framed Coredale Elevate Joan, exhibited by the Rodman Thompson family's Coredale Farm, East Berlin. It was the stylish cow's first trip through a showring, due to her having been completing lactations during previous summer-show seasons.

The five-year-old, homebred Vigo Starlite Elevate daughter is scored EX-90, a classification she earned as a nearly-dry four-year-old. Joan freshened two months ago and is milking 120 pounds daily, with a projected third lactation of 20,700 milk and 750 fat.

Corredale's heifer string commanded impressive attention, with two yearlings taking the junior champion and reserve honors.

Their homebred winter yearling, Coredale Algonguin Jingle, earned the junior champion and best junior bred and owned awards. In the reserve junior champion slot was granddaughter Amy Trimmer, exhibiting Penn-Gate V Dan Hope, a spring yearling that won junior show honors the previous day at the 4-H roundup.

Premier breeder and exhibitor banners went to Frank and Sandy Feeser and their 11-head string from Furnace Creek Farm, Hanover. Feeser's took first places in the aged cow class, first and second with junior two-year-olds, and several thirds with both cows and heifers.

It was the first banner win for the Feeser family after six years of showing. They credited their herdsman of seven years, John Doll, for Furnace Creek's participation in the area Holstein show circuit.

Order 4 Dairy Farmers Outpace Counterparts

KARL BERGER
Special Correspondent

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Financial data may be inconclusive about what size farms are the most profitable, but it is clear about where they are.

Figures from both the Farm Credit and Farm Management Services data bases in Pennsylvania show that dairy farmers supplying the Federal Order 4 market have higher numbers in a host of financial categories than their counterparts elsewhere in the commonwealth. These farmers are located primarily in the southeastern and southcentral portions of the state.

The Farm Credit Bank of Springfield, which offers its Agrifax accounting service to Pennsylvania farmers through an agreement with the four Agricultural Credit associations in the state, recently presented data on the financial performance of dairy farmers in 1991 to the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board. Jim Putnam, Springfield's director of business research, said the summary was derived from 122 dairy farms statewide that use Agrifax.

Putnam's numbers show that farmers supplying Order 4, the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Order, tend to have both larger herds and higher per-cow production than farmers supplying either Order 2, the New York-New Jersey Order, or Order 36 in western Pennsylvania. They also have higher total assets and total liabilities, as calculated by Farm Credit economists. At $658,000, the average net equity of the Order 4 participants was about one-third higher than the average worth of participants from the other orders.

It's widely known that Order 4 producers benefit from milk prices that are slightly higher than elsewhere in the state. In 1991, for instance, they received an average of $13.10 a hundredweight while Order 2 suppliers received $13.03 and Order 36 producers received $12.89, according to the summary.

The Farm Credit numbers also show, however, that Order 4 dairy farmers had — at $13.52 a hundredweight — a slightly lower "net cost of production" than did Order 2 producers, who averaged $13.85. Order 36 producers averaged $13.26.

(As calculated by Farm Credit economists, the net cost of production includes allowances for depreciation and family living expenses in addition to cash costs, but it also reduces the total by any on-farm income not derived from milk.)

These cost of production numbers would seem to contradict the general notion that expenses such as labor, taxes, and insurance are higher in the more heavily populated southeast corner. That's not the case; a breakdown of cash costs show that such expenses are indeed higher for Order 4 producers.

But at least two other factors tend to moderate these disadvantages, according to the Farm Credit analysis. One is the larger size of Order 4 herds, which allows fixed costs to be spread over a larger number of cows. The other is the role played by farm income other than milk sales, which is between $1.08 and $.68 higher in Order 4 than in the other markets.

None of these figures come as any surprise to those who have studied cost of production numbers. Bob Yonkers, an ag economist at Penn State University, said numbers from the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service have shown the same story for years. Dick Dennison, manager of the Farm Management Services program for the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, said summary data derived from his program also make this point.

PFA's 1991 Farm Business Summary, derived from the records of more than 2,700 members who use the financial management service, also show higher net equities and incomes among dairy farmers supplying the Philadelphia market than among those elsewhere in the state. These dairy farmers also have higher averages for such measures of performance as net farm profit per man and total production per hour.

Dennison attributed the differences to several factors in addition to milk prices. Farms in the southeast tend to be larger, he said, and their soils, topography, and climate lend themselves to higher per-acre yields of various feedstuffs. Also, he added, higher land values in the southeast have driven farmers there to intensify their operations; a number of dairy farmers there also manage hog and broiler operations.

These two farm summaries also point out the wide variation in profit margins among dairy farmers. For 1991, both show negative margins for farms in all three regions, once outputs for family living expenses and depreciation are subtracted from the equation.

Nevertheless, while all farms in the summaries were showing losses of 46 and 75 cents a hundredweight, respectively, the top 10 percent of farms in the PFA summary recorded an average profit of 52 cents.

Breeding, Other Factors Make Championship Steer Shine

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — The championship was so close, the animal could taste it.

Not only that, but the animal ate it — the ribbon, that is.

After receiving the award for the reserve champion market steer on Wednesday at the Lebanon Beef Show, Jason Shirk, 10 (who also picked up champion hog on Monday at the fair) placed a second place ribbon in his back pocket. While trying to maneuver his steer, a 1,320 pound Simmental cross, to get into the show arena, the animal reached around and began licking the ribbon. And ate it.

So Jason went back up to the show stand and asked for another ribbon.

But even though the show may have been close at times, the supreme champion was finally awarded to Seth Myer, 15, from Meyerstown, for his Chianina/Angus cross, the 1,300 pound "Randy." Seth, who attends Tulpahocken High School, said it was breeding and other factors that helped him produce a winner. He belongs to the county 4-H beef club and has been showing for about three years.

"Elmer," a 1,465-pound Angus/Simmental, won champion 4-H show honors for Roxanne Kirst, 16. Roxanne said that "you have to work with the animals and spend a lot of time with them" to ensure a show championship. Roxanne has been showing for about six years.

Judge for the show was Dr. Erskine Cash, professor of animal science and beef project coordinator at Penn State.

Following is a list of show placings.

ADC Meets Farmers' Needs
More Than $124 Million in Extra Payments

"At Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, our mission is to maximize returns to members. In the past five years, we returned more than $124 million to members in equity payments, over-order premiums and quality bonuses. That's an average of $35,500 per member. And these extra dollars are continuing at the rate of $1.5 million a month.

"When non-members ask me why they should belong to Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, I am happy to report that we are financially healthy, strong in membership and growing in sales. ADC is the region's largest and most fiscally-sound cooperative, with a guaranteed market and outstanding benefits.

"More dairy farmers joined us last year than at any time in the past decade. If you are not an ADC shipper and are worried about your own milk market, then you should talk to the cooperative that is facing the future with confidence."

Restoration Clinic Set

KINZERS (Lancaster Co.) — Anyone who has ever wanted to revive an antique tractor or improve existing restoration technics can get some free schoolin' under the tutelage of master tractor restorers.

Successful Farming magazine and Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company are co-sponsoring an Ageless Iron Restoration Clinic this summer at Rough and Tumble.

This antique tractor restoration clinic is open to everyone. Teaching the classes will be Carroll and Jeff Gravert of Central City, Nebraska. The Gravett's were featured in the Ageless Iron Restoration Guide published last year by Successful Farming magazine. That 36-page guide provided advice from some of the hobby's best restorationists. The Graverts' efforts to rebuild a Cockshutt model 20 from a dilapidated relic into a shiny showroom-like tractor were highlighted in that guide.

The Ageless Iron restoration clinic will start with a 3- to 4- hour presentation. This part of the program will consist of live demonstrations on how to restore antique tractor engines, drive trains, fuel and electric systems, and sheet metal. The Graverts' will use actual tractor parts in their presentation which will also include demonstrations of wire (MIG) welding and spray painting.

The Graverts will also be available each afternoon of the shows to answer questions or offer personal one-on-one demonstrations. The Cockshutt model 20 featured in the Ageless Iron Restoration Guide will also be on display.

The clinic will be held on August 14 at Kinzers' Rough and Tumble Engineers Threshermens Reunion. The reunion runs Aug. 12 through 15 and is located between Lancaster and Coatesville.

Producers Offer To Enroll In Wetlands Program

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Farmers and ranchers in nine states intend to offer nearly 500,000 acres for enrollment in the U.S. Department of Agriculture's pilot Wetlands Reserve Program, Secretary of Agriculture Edward Madigan said recently.

"This strong interest in the Wetlands Reserve Program shows the environmental commitment and responsibility of American farmers," Madigan said.

Under the $46.4 million pilot program, landowners in California, Iowa, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, New York, North Carolina and Wisconsin may offer to enroll land in the wetlands reserve. Enrollment is limited to a total of 50,000 acres for 1992.

USDA will pay landowners easement costs for acreage accepted in the program, plus 75 percent of costs for work approved to restore the land to healthy wetland condition. Enrolled acreage must be kept permanently as wetlands, under the supervision of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

During the recent signup period for the program, 2,730 landowners in the nine pilot states told their ASCS county offices they are interested in offering 466,000 acres for enrollment.

Madigan said USDA will proceed with wetlands enrollment with the $46.6 million available this year and will seek to restore funding in the Senate for fiscal year 1993.

The House, declaring it wanted to assess producer interest in the program, voted June 30 to eliminate wetland funding next year.

"Clearly, this is a popular program with far-reaching environmental benefits," Madigan said. "The whole idea is to help farmers voluntarily restore, by 1995, up to 1 million acres of land under cultivation back to wetlands to conserve soil and improve water and wildlife habitat," Madigan said.

Farmers who submit acceptable offers this year will still receive annual payments even if the House action becomes law.

The damp, cool weather during Corn Party Day at Robert and Millie Groff's home did not hamper the "corny fun" the grandparents, children, and grandchildren enjoyed during their annual get together to process corn. # Corn Party Day Brings Family Togetherness

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — When the Groff clan gets together to process a wagonload of corn, it's difficult to discern where the work ends and the fun begans.

That's because Millie Groff, mother and grandmother of the clan, taught them that "work is fun the live-long day."

"I never had to teach them to work because we always make it fun when we get together," Millie said as she watched her granddaugher, 15-year-old Denise, scrubbing pots and pans at the kitchen sink.

For the five children and 13 grandchildren, who range in age from 6 months to 18 years, the annual Corn Party Day held on July 24 was a whole day of "corny fun" with family members playing practical jokes on each other.

In addition to Bob and Millie Groff, the clan includes daughters, Carol Best, Joyce Graybill, Sharon Enck, Sue Rutt, and son Chuck and 13 grandchildren. Some of the spouses were missing during the day because of job commitments.

Grandpa Bob had planted one-half acre of Bodacious corn, which produced a hugh wagon-load of corn. The whole clan, from 3-year-olds to those who refused to divulge their ages, worked together to husk the corn, brush off the silks, blanch it, cut off the kernels and package it for freezing.

Of course, corn on the cob was served for lunch.

Millie Groff started the corn party day at 2:45 a.m. when she got up to bake 13 angel food cakes, which she sells at a local dairy store.

The baskets of corn are piling up. Looks like these folks better brush off the corn silks a bit faster.

For Millie, the Corn Party Day actually began at 2:45 a.m. when she got up to bake 13 Angel Food cakes. Then it was out to the chicken house to gather eggs before setting up the corn assembly-line.

The Groffs are well known in the agricultural community.

Perhaps they are most uniquely known for serving blue milk shakes to promote Harvestore silos and green milkshakes to promote Pioneer corn, which Bob sells. Because they have chickens, Millie often makes red beet eggs in the shape of apples, complete with a clove for a stem.

On the Groffs' 200-acre Quarryville farm, they have 70 milking cows, 70 replacements, 25 Simmental beef, and 60,000 layers.

Because all but one of the children's families live "just over the hill," several of the grandkids help with the daily chores of farming. Sue's daughter, Marlene Enck, the Alternate Lancaster County Poultry Queen, helps with both morning and evening milking and with egg packing. Her sister Melissa tends the calves. Chuck's children, Dana and Matthew, also help with the calves.

"As the grandchildren get older, we get more and more help," Millie said. Before she married Bob, the couple read the book, Cheaper by the Dozen. "We both thought it sounded like fun to have a big family," Millie said. Although the Groffs only had five children, they now have a baker's dozen of grandchildren with 13 of them.

Family togetherness is certainly not designated to Corn Party Day alone. Each Christmas the family writes "corny" poems about each other. Both Millie and Bob wrote poetry while the children were growing up and the children and grandchildren continue to carry on the tradition. "We have stacks of silly poems about each other," Joyce Graybill said.

Skits are another activity the family enjoys doing together.

"When the grandchildren come, they often ask, "Grandma, what skit can we do today?"

Previously, Millie made up the skits, but now as the children grow older, they are making up their own skits. Their reputation for entertainingskits obviously spread, for the family has presented their skits before church groups.

Bob and Millie met each other through 4-H activities. Later, they served as 4-H leaders and are now delighted to see their grandchildren join 4-H as they are old enough. Marlene, who won a gold ribbon in the Capitol Region Fashion Revue for her prom gown, will be competing at the state level this week.

The influence of living on a farm shines forth in Millie's off-the-farm activities. When she became a coordinator for a Church of the Brethren program, Millie built the year-long program around chickens and eggs, by relating ideas that are hatched under proper environment conditions.

Interspersed among her farm, church, and community activities, Millie spends a lot of time in her special baking kitchen that was built-on to their recently remodeled home. She said, "My mother always said that I was born a baker.

Somebody's got to wash dishes, which Denise Best volunteered to do.

Work is fun because Grandma taught her children and grandchildren that work is play.

When I was only a toddler, I crawled up on the table and sat in her cake pan."

Since then, Millie has become adept at baking and cake decorating. She bakes wedding cakes and other special occasion cakes for private orders. Twice a week, she bakes 12 to 13 Angel Food Cakes. People who taste them, insist they have never tasted better ones.

Millie said that she began baking Angel Food cakes to sell when eggs were at rock bottom prices and a neighbor asked if she would bake for her store. Millie has continued to bake and now she said, "The egg prices are rock bottom again."

Fortunately, even if egg prices are rock bottom, the Groff's find plenty of fun in their work and in family togetherness.

Kids of all ages get into the act of husking corn.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

The phrase jumped out at me from a recent Sunday morning church sermon and stuck in my head ever since.

"..... bringing life from where there was none."

While the words were not strictly an agricultural reference, there hardly seems to be a more appropriate summation of what farming is all about than "bringing life from where there was none."

This phrase becomes especially meaningful each time we glance out the window or step outside. For in this mid-summer, blessed with more normal amounts of rainfall in the area, life has been brought forth from where there was none with exciting abundance.

And the green that blankets our rolling hills brings renewed appreciation, especially against still-vivid memories of the barren, dull-brownness of last summer's devastating drought.

Life abundant sprouted in the field across the road from the house, draping a lush green curtain of corn across our view to the north. Much of the year, that whole hillside stretches in a panoramic view of the contoured fields, bordered by the ridgetop homes of our northern neighbors. I can no longer tease widower-neighbor John about keeping an eye on his comings and goings.

"The corn is a foot and a half taller than this," grins our Younger Farmer, arriving for lunch, demonstrating the stalks' height with a long arm outstretched above his six-foot-plus frame. "And just going into tassel."

It is that fragile-looking tassel crowning a cornstalk that brings life to an otherwise barren stalk, dropping fertilizing pollen to the silked-ears below and creating the earful of kernals where there was none. Those small golden kernels feed people and animals, provide trade and manufacturing resources and provide the seed to continue corn's abundant addition to our lives.

Life abundant has sprawled across the garden patch, so thick and lush one must cross the garden by hopping on tiptoe to small openings in the mass of stems and vines. The hills of cantaloupes are so grown in and among each other it's impossible to know which stalk is rooted where. Vines from the hills of Jack-Be-Little decorative pumpkin-gourds have managed to weave themselves through the tomato plants, despite repeated attempts to head them toward the cornfield.

Elbowed by the pumpkins, the tomatoes sprawl over the gladioli, nudge toward the cauliflower seedlings and blanket the string beans. Relatively cool evenings seem to be keeping the bean beetles at bay and encouraging beans to grow faster than I can keep 'em picked this season.

A couple of un-dug potatoes from last year pushed up sturdy stalks between the asparagus bed and the raspberry patch extension. And color accents the vegetable rows, volunteer cleomes, and cookscomb which win the right to stay with their persistence and prettiness.

New life is springing forth abundantly at the barn, in the midst of the stretch of mid-summer to early fall, when our rate of calf births reaches its annual peak.

A quick tally shows the deliveries running a 70 percent rate of heifers (females). Political analysts keep calling this the Year of the Woman - perhaps the girls at the barn are just keeping up with the trend.

And it's too soon to know if that's the case with another species in which life that has sprung forth abundantly - and doubled our rate of occupancy at the cats' milk dish. Most are still-untamed, barn-cat babies, which eventually will gentle as they learn to accept being petted while distracted by a breakfast of warm milk.

But they burst with life as they roll and tumble and play - in and out of the calf barn, over and under bales of straw, tirelessly engaged in chase-attack games among the weeds that poke up along the barn foundations.

"..... bringing life from where there was none."

And in this time of thick green growth, harvest promise, fresh fruits and vegetables, baby calves and playful kittens, we are truly grateful for summer's abundance.

Jennifer Frederick Is Blair County Princess

Linda Williams
Bedford Co. Correspondent

MARTINSBURG (Blair Co.) — Jennifer Frederick's skit involving a reporter interviewing a dairy consumer brought many favorable comments following the Blair County Dairy Pageant.

The event was held at the Lakemont Casino on June 24 with Tim Parvell of Farm Credit acting as emcee.

A good candidate for the title, Jennifer has 28 Holsteins of her own. She enjoys showing her cattle at the Morrison's Cove Dairy Show and, "When I qualify, I go on to districts."

The blond, blue-eyed princess says she won her first grand champion trophy at the age of nine.

The daughter of Larry and Sharon Frederick of Martinsburg RD, Jennifer has a sister, Angie, 15; and a brother, Eric, 12.

She will be a senior at Central High School this fall and plans to further her education next year at college. "I hope to be an elementary teacher," she says.

Jennifer has been a member of the 4-H Dairy Club for 10 years. She is involved with 'peer tutoring," the Future Teachers of America, and is a member of the Newry Lutheran Church.

Jennifer received her crown from last year's queen, Janice Hamilton.

Mercer County Crowns Dairy Princess

CAROL SMITH
Mercer Co. Correspondent

Two Mercer County teenagers vied for the 1992 title of Mercer County Dairy Princess. More than 200 dairy farmers and families members gathered for the pageant held May 30 at the county's Agricultural Extension Center. April Walker, an 18-year-old graduate of Hickory High School, captured the honor. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Dixon of Sharpsville. Elizabeth Voorhies, 17-year-old senior at Lakeview High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Voorhies, Stoneboro, was named alternate.

Wearing evening gowns, the girls were escorted by their fathers and introduced to the audience and three judges — Betsy Dupuis of Harrisburg, communications director for the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotions Program; Arnie Wienk of Latrobe, who has been employed by Agway Inc. for the past 42 years; and Charles Ruslavage of Clarion, a retired professor of health and physical education at Clarion University.

Personal interviews were conducted during the afternoon, and the girls made their own presentations explaining the nutritional importance of dairy products. The final competition was an impromptu question which was: Imagine yourself as the state dairy princess and you are seated next to the governor, what would your reply be if he were to ask you - "What do you feel is the most important issue facing dairy farmers today?"

The audience was then treated to a farewell speech from the 1991-92 Mercer County Dairy Princess, Onalee Smith, daughter of Tom and Carol Smith. Smith who invoked tears and laughter in her speech was successful in not only capturing the county title but was also named as alternate dairy princess for Pennsylvania.

During the evening, the Dairy Princess Darlings performed a skit about the ABC's of dairy farming. The Darlings and their parents were: Tenesha Aden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Aden of Stoneboro; Becky Aiken, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Aiken of West Middlesex; Abigal Amon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Amon of Jackson Center; Amanda Crichlow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Critchlow of Harrisville; Cassandra Gadsby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gadsby of Stoneboro; Katie and Missy Hanna, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Hanna of Stoneboro; Nicole Kellog, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kellog of Jackson Center; Abigal, Carrie and Stacey Moose, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Moose of New Wilmington; Sally Oakes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Oakes of Jackson Center; Ashley Shannon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Shannon of Stoneboro; Kimberly Voorhies, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Voorhies of Stoneboro; and Michelle Voorhies, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Voorhies of Sandy Lake. Heidi Kepner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Kepner, presented flowers during the evening.

Elaine Hill Leise, chairman of the county's Dairy Princess Committee and a former Mercer County Dairy Princess, coordinated the program. Beth Christy, a disc jockey on WZPR radio of Meadville, served as mistress of ceremonies. Other committee members included Elaine Cannon, Roberta Clayton, Kim Croskey, Kathy Evans, Angie George, Tammy Hanna, Marlyn Hill, Debbie Moose, Wendy Pfaff, Carol Smith, Carol Thompson and Diane Welch.

Mercer County Dairy Princess April Walker, left, and Elizabeth Voorhies, alternate, are eager to promote the dairy industry in Mercer County.

Farm Safe Kids Day To Be Held August 12

NEWARK, Del. — A recent Wisconsin study indicates that injuries to children on farmsare occuring at epidemic rates. Although the exact toll is not known, approximately 300 kids will die and more than 23,000 will be injuried on U.S. farms this year.

To help reduce injuries to children on Delaware farms, University of Delaware Cooperative Extension is working with the Delaware Farm Bureau and Delaware Grange to promote Wednesday, Aug. 12, as FARM SAFE KIDS DAY in Delaware.

The day will be observed in a special educational program from 8:30 a.m. to noon at this year's Farm and Home Field Day at the university's Research and Education Center. The center is located on Route 9 just west of Georgetown.

The program will focus on hazards that farm kids and children visiting farms should be aware of. Hands-on exhibits and demonstrations will incldude electrical safety, ATVs, lawn equipment, air guns, tractor and machinery hazards, Sesame Street's fire safety program, flowing grain, drug awareness and Delaware State Police fingerprinting. Other activities will include a safety rap presentation, a petting zoo, 4-H bicycle and small-engine competitions, hayrides, the seat belt dummies and other costumed characters presenting unique safety messages.

Children 5 to 14 and their families are encouraged to attend. There will be a prize for the first 500 kids, and door prizes will be handed out every 30 minutes. Future Farmers of America and 4-H clubs will be selling refreshments.

THE 5TH ANNUAL RURAL ENVIRONMENTAL FIELD DAYS WILL BE HELD ON AUGUST 3,4,5

The Field Days this year will be held on Monday, Aug. 3, Tuesday, Aug. 4, and Wednesday, Aug. 5. The 1992 Field Days will be held again on the Spring Wood Farm which is operated by the Roman Stoltzfoos family. It is located on 1143 Gap Rd. about 3 mi. south of Gap.

The first day (Aug. 3rd) will deal with how to successfully get started in a Non-Toxic Biological way of farming.

The second day (Aug. 4th) will be a more advanced seminar on this proven way of farming. Where you need not depend on pesticides, herbicides and strong chemical fertilizer to maintain your production and quality.

1 cup unsweetened pineapple juice
⅔ cup dry sherry

"Microwave Magic"

By:
Carol Stark

Hot dogs and summertime go together like hot dogs and baseball. Ever popular with people of all ages, franks can be the basis for a quick meal following an afternoon at the pool.

Frankfurters are precooked and only need heating. They react quickly to microwave energy, and many beginners overheat them because they can't believe franks will be ready in such a short time.

If you are cooking franks in a main dish casserole, bury them under moist ingredients, such as beans or sauerkraut. If meat is on the bottom, the casserole won't need stirring.

To defrost: For 1 lb. of franks, place unopend package in oven. Microwave at Defrost 3 to 5 minutes, just until franks can be separated. For 1/2 lb. cut time in half.

Microwaving: Franks vary in size. Larger ones, such as Polish or bratwurst, will take longer. Franks are prone to pop or explode. You can remedy this by pricking them with a fork, but diagonal slashes are especially attractive. To microwave franks on a paper or pottery plate, cover them with wax paper. Use a casserole and additional water to heat more than six franks. To heat franks right in the bun place a napkin or paper towel under the bun to absorb moisture. A bun placed directly on a plate or the oven floor gets steamy underneath. To heat more than four, do them in successive batches.

TAVERN FRANKS

For fuller flavor, prick franks and marinate in beer 3 to 4 hours or overnight before cooking.

1 lb. franks
1 small onion, thinly sliced
1 can (12 oz.) beer (1 1/2 cups)

In a 2 quart casserole place franks. Separate onion into rings and distribute over franks. Pour beer over all. Cover. Microwave at HIGH 7 to 9 minutes, redistributing franks so bottom ones are on top after 4 minutes. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

WIENER BEAN POT

2 cans (1 lb. each) pork and beans
1/3 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup ketchup
1/4 cup water
2 tablespoon brown sugar
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 lb. wieners cut up in thirds

In a 2 quart casserole stir together beans, onion, ketchup, water, brown sugar and mustard. Add wieners, pushing pieces below surface of beans to prevent over cooking. Cover. Microwave at HIGH 13 to 15 minutes, stirring after 8 minutes, until hot. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

SAUSAGE AND SAUERKRAUT

1 lb. franks scored or 1 lb. Polish sausage (Kielbasa)
1 can (1 lb.) sauerkraut, rinsed and drained
2 tablespoons instant minced onion
1 teaspoon beef bouillon granules

In a 2 quart casserole place meat. Cover with sauerkraut mixed with onions and bouillon. Cover. Microwave at HIGH for 12 to 14 minutes, rotating dish 1/2 turn after 6 minutes. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

BARBECUED FRANKS

3/4 cup ketchup
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon chili powder
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash liquid pepper seasoning (tabasco)
1/2 cup water
1 lb. franks

In a 2 quart casserole mix together ketchup, Worcestershire sauce, chili powder, sugar, salt, liquid pepper seasoning and water. Place 1 lb. franks in sauce, pushing pieces below surface to prevent overcooking. Cover.

Microwave at HIGH for 9 to 12 minutes, rearranging franks after 5 minutes. Serve on buns, if desired, with generous amount of sauce over each. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Stop Tomato Problems

RUTGERS, N.J. — We've waited longer than usual for tomatoes this year, but good eating is ahead if some problems can be thwarted. Cracking that appears just as the fruit reaches maturity, deep splits radiating from the stem can spoil the harvest. Cultural practices can help reduce this problem.

Cracking sometimes begins when fruit becomes wet. Nothing can be done about rain, but if you water, irrigate the soil rather than sprinkle the garden. Keeping the soil uniformly moist rather than letting it dry and then drenching it will also help avoid cracking. Staked and pruned tomatoes are most susceptible to cracking than unstaked plants. (But, of course, unstaked tomatoes often develop soil rots). If you have had repeated problems with fruit cracking, next year select a crack resistant variety.

Blossom end-rot is a plant disorder rather than a disease. It results in a black, leathery shrunken area at the bottom of the tomato. Too little calcium in the developing fruit is the cause of the problem. Too much, as well as too little, water may lead to this deficiency. If you maintain soil pH at 6.0-6.5, soil calcium level will be adequate; proper watering will depend on the weather and you.

Tomato hornworms (green caterpillars) are impressive in size and in the amount of damage one can do. Fortunately they don't occur in large numbers. In the home garden the best control is simply to remove them. If you see one that is covered with white growths, leave it in the garden. The caterpillar is carrying the cocoons of a braconid wasp-a beneficial insect.

When fruits are allowed to fully ripen on the plant, rots can be a problem. Spraying a fungicide can prevent and control them. Check the label on vegetable disease control products for use on tomato to control fruit rots and anthracnose.

10-ounces frozen chopped broccoli, thawed, drained
6 slices tomatoes

Beat together eggs, ½ cup milk and seasonings until blended. Stir in ham. In 8- to 10-inch omelet pan or skillet over medium heat, heat butter until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in egg mixture. As mixture begins to set, gently draw an inverted pancake turner completely across bottom and sides of pan, forming large, soft curds. Continue until eggs are thickened but still moist. Do not stir constantly. Remove from heat.

In greased 8x8x2-inch baking dish, evenly layer 6 of the halved toast slices, scrambled egg mixture, ½ cup cheese and remaining toast slices. Pour remaining milk over top. Sprinkle evenly with broccoli, top with tomato slices and sprinkle with remaining cheese.

Dip in cold water, slip off skins, and remove cores. Coarsely chop tomatoes and combine chopped peppers, onions, and remaining ingredients in a large kettle. Bring to a boil and simmer 10 minutes. Fill pint jars, leaving ½-inch headspace. Adjust lids and process jars 15 minutes in boiling water bath.

Peel and quarter onions. Blend tomatoes, peppers, and onions at high speed for 5 seconds in electric blender. Pour into a 3- to 4-gallon kettle and heat. Broil gently for 60 minutes, stirring frequently. Add vinegar, sugar, salt, and a spice bag containing dry mustard, red pepper, and other spices. Continue boiling and stirring until volume is reduced one-half and ketchup rounds up on a spoon with no separation of liquid and solids. Remove spice bag and fill pint jars, leaving ¼-inch headspace. Adjust lids and process jars in boiling water bath for 15 minutes.

MORE ICE FOR SUMMER THIRST

Summertime is cool-drink time, and that can put real pressure on home ice supplies. Technically, there are not any methods to increase the amount of ice your refrigerator can produce. But there are ways to maximize ice production, whether you have an automatic icemaker or just plain old fashioned ice trays.

The first things to remeber is that the colder the freezer section, the faster ice will freeze in it. So anything you can do to keep your freezer section cold, the more ice it will produce in a given period of time.

For example, do not open the freezer door any more than necessary, and do not put warm food in your freezer. Cool them in your refrigerator before you place them in your freezer.

Keeping condensor coil clean is extremely important. It improves performance, and saves energy, too. You will find these coils underneath and behind the toe grill on most refrigerators, on the back of some older models. Be sure to vacuum them regularly.

If you have an older manual or cycle defrost refrigerator (with exposed coils in the freezer section), be sure to defrost it regularly. Frost buildup on those coils more than 1/4-inch thick acts like insulation, keeping the freezer from getting as cold as it should and causing the compressor to run more frequently.

Finally, plan ahead. If you know you are going to need extra ice in a few days, start saving now. Store cubes in a tightly sealed plastic bag in your freezer where they will be ready for use when needed.

MICROWAVE OVENS CAN SAVE GRILL TIME

Cooking outside on the grill is a summer time favorite in America, but it can be time consuming. With a little help from your microwave oven, you can cut grilling time dramatically. Here is how it works.

Place six ears of corn, in their husks (with silk removed), on a microwave-safe platter, sprinkle with one-fourth cup of water, cover tightly with plastic wrap, and cook in your microwave oven at high power for 12 minutes, rotating each ear a half turn one-half way through the cooking time. When time to eat, place the corn, still in husks, on grill for about one minute on each side.

Wash and pierece the skins of six unpeeled medium-sized potatoes and cook in your microwave oven for six minutes on high power. Turn the potatoes and cook for six more minutes. When your entree is almost finished cooking, place the potatoes on the grill directly over the coals and cook on each side for about one minute.

Place chicken pieces skin side down in a microwave-safe dish. Cover with waxed paper and cook in your microwave oven at high power for six minutes per pound, turning the pieces over and rearranging once during cooking time. Transfer immediately to the grill and cook for five minutes on each side

'Corny' Fun For 13 Cousins

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — When 13 cousins get together they have what they call "corny fun." At least that's what they called it on July 24, the day they had a Corn Party Day at their grandparents' farm in Quarryville.

Their grandparents, Robert and Millie Groff, grow lots of corn so that the grandchildren and their parents can come to farm and freeze it to eat during the winter months.

The youngest cousin, who is only six-months-old, is too little to help with the corn, but she isn't too little to provide lots of fun for her cousins who like to carry her around and play with her.

The oldest cousin is Marlene Enck, who is the Alternate Lancaster County Poultry Queen. In between working, she sometimes entertains her cousins with juggling.

Although the cousins help all day long with the corn, they find time to climb trees, bring in Grandpa's cows from the meadow, ride golf cart, and make up silly poems.

The other cousins include Denise Best, 15; Sarah Graybill, 7; Dana Groff, 10; Melissa Enck, 15; Matthew Groff, 6; Alissa Rutt, 6; Rebecca Graybill, 4; Joe Best 13; Mark Graybill, 10; Kevin Groff, 3; and Ben Rutt, 3.

Here are some pictures of them working and playing on Grandpa's farm.

On Grandpa's farm, the grandkids have their own tractor and wagon on which they haul corn. From left are Rebecca Graybill, Ben Rutt, Matthew and Kevin Groff.

These cousins run to the meadow to bring in the cows.

Lady the dog hops on the golf cart in hopes that Ben Rutt and Rebecca Graybill will give him a ride.

How many kids can fit in a tree? These cousins always find room for one more.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Diaries can be a record of history. They are a daily record of personal activities, reflections or feelings. It is also a place to rid oneself of frustrations. For more than 50 years I've made daily notes of happenings in my own life.

Recently I found a little black book which covers the trip that my great grandfather took when he traveled West and visited friends and relatives along the way. The first entry is April 5, 1858 when he left home for Lancaster. It took him one hour but today it would be a ten minute trip. He took a train to Pittsburgh. He tells of stops along the way and of eating supper at a tavern. A boat took him to Cincinnati for six dollars and then on to St. Louis. He mentions going to the theatre and to an open market. The boat stopped on the Kentucky shore "to take on wood." They ran out of "good water," he says.

From the Mississippi River, he saw Indian huts and he tells of paying two dollars a day at the Kings Hotel. He visited relatives in Illinois and helped to build a fence. One day he borrowed a horse and when he returned it, he watered it and put it in the stable. Then he says, "the rascal kicked me yet." Some people gave him wrong directions and he walked and walked and got blisters.

By April 27, he was in Chicago and bought two pair of stockings for 25¢. When he was charged 35¢ more than he should have been for a ticket, he complained. He and friends talked over old times and he mended his overcoat. One family that he visitied was too "pious" for him with their constant praying and kneeling. He planted corn for a relative on May 15 and then booked passage on a boat for Buffalo. Some passengers became sick as the water was very rough. He mentions traveling on Lake Huron and Lake Erie. Next came Buffalo, Albany, New York, and then home to Lancaster County by May 26th.

He was married shortly thereafter and farmed for the rest of his life, but I would think that this trip's memories remained with him always.

The Prevost Farm is said to be the oldest Century Farm in Wyoming County where pioneer John A. Prevost purchased about 500 acres in 1815.

Century Farm Continues In Wyoming County

RONALD D. CLARK
Susquehanna Correspondent

RUSSELL HILL (Wyoming Co.) — Not only is the Prevost Farm the oldest Century Farm in the county, the saga of the family's locating here is one of the most fascinating tales.

Shortly after Pierre Samuel DuPont came from France about 1800, the first Prevost also came from France to America to become a gardener for the DuPont estates. He was living near Philadelphia when he heard of land developments occurring in what was then the "West," in the direction of what is now known as French Azilum, near Towanda. He decided to migrate in that direction, and in 1815 purchased the farm tract in what was then Luzerne County and is now Wyoming County. The homestead has been occupied by his descendents to this day.

The pioneer, John A. Prevost, married a young woman named LaFevre, who was to have been a servant of the French queen, Marie Antoinette, in the settlement being prepared for her along the picturesque Susquehanna River. However, the queen had fallen from favor and was beheaded by French revolutionaries in 1793, and development of the project came to an end.

At that time, John A. Prevost's holdings were about 500 acres, including an inn. The signboard for that inn is still displayed in the foyer of the homestead. Although the original dwelling and inn were destroyed twice, once by fire, it was rebuilt each time and has been occupied by a Prevost descendent ever since its purchase. The farm was passed to John's son, Edward, who had ten children, several of whom chose to enter professions other than farming. At Edward's death, the farm was divided into four parts and four sons inherited parts of the real estate.

John was the great-great-great grandfather of the present occupant of the old homestead: Edward the great-great grand-

The Prevosts restore and recondition farm tractors such as this John Deere GP, circa 1916, which has only a clutch brake and a magneto engine that is started by manual cranking of the flywheel.

The original house and inn were destroyed twice, but rebuilt. Roy Prevost and his family live on the farmstead. He and his father Judson farm about 200 acres and raise 120 registered Holsteins on Wyoming County's oldest century farm.

One standard of quality
#1 in the field

718 Forage Harvester

If you want high-quality feed, you'll like the fine, uniform chop you get from the Model 718 forage harvester. It's the only medium-duty harvester available with a 12-knife cutterhead to give you a controlled, even cut. The uniform length of cut makes for easier unloading, blowing, storing and feeding. And you can choose from four crop-saving heads— a one- or two-row cornhead, a windrow pickup or a sicklebar.

900 Forage Harvester

You get total performance when you harvest your crops with a Model 900 forage harvester. Total performance begins at the cutterhead. The 12 knives of the 21-inch cutterhead give you uniformly cut, high-quality forage.

2115 Forage Harvester

You get big capacity with a Model 2115 self-propelled forage harvester—because you get fast harvesting with a 14-foot direct-cut attachment or five- and six-row cornheads.
And there's more. The "2115" has a massive 30-inch-wide, 12-knife cutterhead, and is powered by a 325-horsepower turbocharged six-cylinder diesel engine. And the exclusive automatic knife sharpener and automatic shearbar adjuster, called Accucut™, combine to give you precision-sharpened knives and a reset shearbar, all from the comfort of the cab.

816 & 818 Forage Boxes

You can unload any crop quickly and efficiently with the new big-capacity Models 816 and 818 forage boxes from Ford New Holland. Roller chain drive provides unloading speeds of 3.0 and 7.1 feet-per-minute. And tough Duraply sides flex under heavy loads for season-after-season dependability. The "816" and "818" unload from the front and come standard with three self-aligned beaters and baked-enamel galvanized roof.

Couple Recall Public Wedding At The Fair

Sharon B. Schuster
Maryland Correspondent

UNION BRIDGE, Md. — Fifty-three years ago, on August 23, 1939, Frances Bauerline became the bride of Frank Fogle of Union Bridge, Maryland. Now, at age 71, Mrs. Fogle said that, like many brides, she had the wedding day jitters. Understandably, Frances Fogle had more to be nervous about than most brides. Approximately 3,000 people witnessed the event at their public wedding at the Carroll County Fair.

"I saw all the people when I got into the limousine," she recalled.

"It didn't make any difference to me," said her husband, Frank Fogle. "The more the better. There were about 6,000 people on the grounds that evening," he added.

How the couple came to be married at the fairgrounds is an interesting story. "We had been going together for about a year and a half," explained Mr. Fogle. I was at her home one evening when I saw this ad in the paper:"

Attention: Young Couples in Carroll County. Would you like to have a pretty wedding on Wednesday, Aug. 23, 1939, at the Carroll County Fair at Taneytown? If so, contact Mrs. T. B. Cash, Westminster or George E. Dodrer, Taneytown for information.

"I showed [animals at the fair] all my life. I said we might as well get married there," he mused. The economy was not good at the time, according to Mr. Fogle, and he said that they saw this as a way to "get married for free."

They applied for the public wedding and all of the free services that went with it — free formal wear for the bridal party, flowers, hair styling, a limousine and cash. "That's the only free haircut I ever had," said Mr. Fogle with a chuckle.

The young couple competed with about 16 other couples who dreamed of the same grand wedding at the Carroll County Fair. At the time, the site of the fair was in Taneytown where the Taneytown Shopping Center now stands. It was the 42nd annual fair in the county, and the Public Wedding was an eagerly anticipated annual event.

"I think we were chosen because we would draw a good crowd, Frances being from Westminster and myself from Union Bridge," he surmised.

The names of the chosen couple were kept a secret from the public until that Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. when Miss Frances Bauerline stepped onto the grandstand and stood by the side of her 22-year-old husband-to-be, Frank Fogle.

"It was almost like you were in church," recalled Mr. Fogle. "They stopped all the rides. It was surprising how you could get 3,000 people to quiet down, he observed. "They didn't want to miss anything," said Mrs. Fogle.

The Fogles' wedding was the first "top hat, white tie and tails affair" at the fair according to a report that was picked up by the Associated Press. Another article reported that the bride, "a charming brunette, wore a gown of white taffeta, with puffed sleeves and a short bodice, and a long, attached train. Her tulle veil was also full length and was caught with a transparent white velvet bow. She carried a colonial arrangement of white roses and

Poultry Queens To Be Crowned August 7

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Two queens instead of one will be selected at the annual Lancaster County Poultry Queen banquet on August 7. One will be crowned as the Pennsylvania Poultry Queen and another as the Lancaster County Poultry Queen.

Three contestants are competing for the honor of promoting the poultry industry. It is a bit confusing, but two of the contestants are named Melissa D. Yoder. The other contestant is Mary Sauder.

The two 17-year-old Melissas did not know each other until they met at a get-together sponsored by the Poultry Association to prepare the contestants for the pageant.

Melissa Dawn Yoder is the daughter of Vernon and Barb Yoder of Christiana. She works part time on her parents' 150 acre farm where they raise 20,000 broilers, 50 pigs, 120 steers, a dog, and "1800" cats. She also works part time at Yoder's Country Market in New Holland.

Melissa will be a senior at Lancaster Mennonite High School in the fall. She is a member of the Campus Chorale and is president of her church's youth group.

She has a brother and a sister who are married.

Melissa Darlene Yoder is the daughter of Richard and Sherry Yoder of Mount Joy. She has two married sisters.

In the fall, Melissa will be a senior at Lancaster Catholic High School where she plays softball and runs cross country. During the summer, she works as a waitress at the Martin House Restaurant.

Melissa's mother works for Wenger Feeds, which makes Melissa eligible to compete for the Poultry Queen title.

Mary Sauder is the daughter of Glen and Joyce Sauder of Neffsville and has one brother. Glen is co owner of Sauder's Eggs of Lititz where Mary had worked part time for two years.

Nineteen-year-old Mary is a recent graduate of Lancaster Mennonite High. She is a waitress at Lancaster Airport Restaurant and is majoring in early childhood education at Lancaster Community College.

Mary enjoys riding horses (she previoused showed) and water skiing.

The banquet program includes a presentation skit by each contestant and impromptu questioning.

The contestants are judged on appearance, speaking ability, poise, personality, industry knowledge, achievements, and availability to make appearances.

Tickets for the banquet on Friday, August 7, which starts at 6:30 p.m. at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center, are $12. For tickets, call Guy Martin (717) 626-2074 or (717) 397-7820.

Enter Apple Pie Contest At Clinton County Fair

CLINTON (Clinton Co.) — An Apple Pie Baking Contest will take place at the Clinton County Fair on Tuesday, August 4. Registration will be held between 5:00 p.m. and 6:15 p.m., with the judging at 6:30 p.m. The contest is being sponsored by Big Wrangler Steak House and Dunkle And Grieb.

The winner of the contest will then be eligible to enter the "Blue Ribbon" Pie Contest at the 1993 Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Each pie is to be judged on overall appearance, on the color, flavor, texture and doneness of the crust and on the consistency and doneness of the filling. Pies are not limited to the traditional two-crust pie. Judges will be looking for a variety in the fillings of the pies. A recipe is to accompany each pie.

First prize is $50, second prize is $25, third is $15 and fourth is $10. A 50¢ entry fee is required per pie. The pies will be auctioned off after the judging. The auction will take place around 8 p.m. and the proceeds will be used for development and improvements of the Open Show Department. For a complete listing of rules or for further information, call Bea Rohrbaugh, (717)726-6945.

Lancaster Society 15

Lancaster Farm Women Society 15 met July 16 at the home of Shirley Ann Kleckler in Octararo Pines. Members responded to roll call by answering the question: Do you exercise?

Kathryn Wagner told of Society 15 making funnel cakes at the art craft day in Quarryville on July 18. Pat Fulbio of the Spina Bifida Association showed slides and told about the problems of the spinal defect and the help the Association offers to victims.

The Farm Women Lancaster County picnic will be held at the Hoffman building in Quarryville on August 4. Society 15's family picnic will be held at the Kirkwood Community Park at 6:30 p.m. on August 20.

tulle, tied with white satin ribbon. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Nevin Bauerline."

Mrs. Fogle added, "I'll never forget that my brother stepped on my gown going up the steps to the grandstand." Mrs. Fogle said that she still has her wedding gown, minus the train. "I cut it off and made a dress for my daughter." While her dress was beautiful, she remembered that "what got more oohs and ahs were the flower girl and ring bearer." The newsprint reported that "the flower girl, Sue Ella Fogle, was attractive in powder blue taffeta, with petticoat ruffled in pink lace and trimmed in rosebuds. The ring bearer, William Little, and the train bearer, Donald Weller, wore tiny formal suits with boutonnieres.

The newspaper accounts reported that "fall colors will predominate" in the wedding. Mr. Fogle's sister, Kathryn Etzel of near Keymar, Maryland said she was "real proud of my dress. It was maroon with a bustle on the back."

The other bridesmaids who wore the maroon gowns were Mrs. Lawrence Little, Suzette Burrier, and Dorothy Fogle. The matron of honor, Eleanor Stimax of Westminster wore a royal blue taffeta gown.

The groomsmen were Lawrence Little, Raymo Fogle, Robert Englar and Stafford Grabill.

The Fogles lived happily ever after on their farm on Clemsonville Road (Carroll Co., Md.) where they dairied until they retired to their current residence in Johnsville (Frederick Co., Md.) in 1966. The couple still hold dear that night at the County Fair and said "we usually celebrate our anniversary at the County Fair in Newport, Pennsylvania."

father. Next in line came Lester S., great-grandfather, then grandfather Edward, and then uncle Lester. Now Roy lives in the old farmstead, which is on the site of the original building. Roy is the son of Judson Prevost, brother of Lester. Judson lives on the adjoining farm, which was a part of the original 500 acres. The farm is operated as a partnership by Judson and Roy.

The farm now consists of about 200 acres. The milking herd numbers about 70 head of a total of 120 registered Holsteins. Roy and his wife, the former Bonnie Altemus, have three children, Justin, Travis and Alexandria. They look forward to having the farm maintained in the family for this upcoming generation.

In spite of their busy schedule, the Prevosts take the time to pursue their hobby of restoring and reconditioning farm tractors. Most of these are in use; they do not have any new tractors. The oldest, acquired only last year, is a John Deer GP, circa 1916. Although it had steel wheels, at some time the front ones were replaced with rims and tires, while the original steel wheels are still on the rear. Its restoration is not completed. It is interesting that this machine has only a clutch brake, which stops the tractor when a shoe is pulled against the power take-off. The magneto engine is started by manual craning of the flywheel.

Other tractors are a 1939 101 Jr. Massey Harris, a 1940 Massey Harris, and a 1150 completely restored Massey Ferguson, of about a 1960 vintage. This one is a workhorse on the farm. There are other less notable tractors.

In the more than 175 years since John Prevost first came to this area, the Prevosts have been innkeepers, farmers, teachers, doctors, lawyers, merchants, business men, construction and mining executives, as well as many types of craftsmen. They have left marks of success in every venture. John V. Prevost, M.D., has compiled a genealogy entitled "The Prevost Family," bound copies of which are in the libraries in Bradford County, Tunkhannock, and the restoration on the French Azilum. Dr. Prevost is retired and lives in Wellsboro.

The family are looking forward to the year 2015, when they will celebrate the bicentennial year of the settling of the farm.

Award-Winning Woody Ornamentals Brighten Landscape

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Tired of the same old boring landscape? Then plant some real award winners!

Recently, the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society released the 1993 winners of its annual Gold Medal Plant Awards. The plants are little-known or underused woody ornamentals of exceptional merit, according to the society.

The plants, according to Cheryl Lee Monroe, administrations manager for the Society, are hardy to the Delaware Valley, "which we define as the region 150 miles outside of Philadelphia," she said at the annual Penn State Professional Landscape Management Program: Focus On Tree Identification, recently.

The woody ornamentals are:

• Viburnum x burkwoodi 'Mohawk', a leather-leaf viburnum that has extremely fragrant flowers.

• Viburnum dilatatum 'Erie,' a larger shrub with an expenase of 10 feet with gorgious white flowers.

• Cryptomeria japmica 'Yoshino,' a good, solid evergreen that does not display some of the "holes" common to more expansive evergreens, with a vibrant blue color.

• Cornus kousa x C. florida 'Rutban,' with large, expansive, overlapping, and vigorous flowers, which grows to about 20-25 feet tall, known by the tradename, 'Aurora.'

• Cornus kousa x C. florida 'Rutlan,' nearly the same as the 'Rutban' variety, except the white flowers do not overlap, known by the tradename, 'Ruth Ellen.'

• Acer griseum, a small, flowering tree.

Also, Monroe spoke about the winners of the 1992 Gold Medal Awards, which included two magnolias and a viburnum. They are:

• Clematis 'Betty Corning,' a 6-foot plant with nodding flowers, hardy to the area.

• Crataegus viridis 'Winter King.'

• Magnolia x 'Galaxy,' a pyramidal, tree-shaped magnolia with large flowers and fragrance.

• Magnolia grandiflora 'Edith Bogue,' with creamy flowers in summer and vibrant evergreen leaves.

• Picea orientalis.

• Viburnum x 'Eskimo,' another leather-leaf plant, 4-5 feet, semi-evergreen, with large white flowers.

Monroe also spoke about past award winners and their relationship to the landscape.

"I know I for one am one of those people that's always saying, hey, this is a great plant, somebody has to get it on the market, someone has to be growing this," she said.

Monroe told more than 100 landscape workers and nursery personnel that there are many ways to find plants for customers. The Society itself maintains a list of sources of the plants available from wholesale and retail markets, in addition to mail order companies.

She spoke about the importance of gathering publicity to speed up the process of the "loop" to feed the supply and demand to the customers.

"I think it's our responsibility to help people know that there's plants that they need to be using," she said. "They don't know. They have no idea. It is our job to go out and, through courses such as today's, to find out what are the good plants and to try to get people to use them."

Cheryl Lee Monroe, Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, inspects a 1990 Gold Award winning plant, Comm sercia 'Silver and Gold,' at the Farm and Home Center. In front is Aster frikarti 'Monch,' 2-½ foot pale blue blooms from early July to frost.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Conodoguinet 4-H Sheep Club

The Conodoguinet Sheep Club held its summer meetings recently.

In June the club participated in its yearly fitting and showing workshop. Many new skills were acquired by the members.

Plans were discussed for the club's roundup and the Shippensburg Fair.

The Club Picnic was discussed and planned for October 18.

All county residents are invited to attend the 4-H show on August 10. Starting at 8 a.m. on the Shippensburg Fairgrounds.

4-H At Huntingdon Fair

Huntingdon County 4-H and FFA programs continue to grow in membership and expanded project interests.

More than 600 members may exhibit projects in 50 4-H and FFA classes, and the youth exhibition area of Johnson Hall has been expanded to accommodate the large number of entries.

The 4-H and FFA exhibits for Johnson Hall can be entered Sunday, August 16 from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m.

On Monday, August 17, 4-H and FFA dairy program members will show more than 100 calves and cattle in the Youth Dairy Show starting at 9 a.m.

Tuesday and Wednesday are highlighted by 4-H and FFA livestock shows. The Youth Swine Show is set for Tuesday, August 18, at 9 a.m. with an expected slate of 60 hogs. Tuesday afternoon the Youth Sheep Show will start at 4:30 p.m., with breeding classes first and then market classes. Approximately 20 breeding and 30 market lambs will enter the show ring.

The schedule for Wednesday, August 19 starts at 10 a.m. with the 4-H/FFA Market Steer Show. Twenty-three steers will vie for the top spot. At 1 p.m. on Wednesday, the Started Calf Show will have more than 35 animals exhibited. Wrapping things up are the Wether Goat and Dairy Goat Shows at 4 p.m. and 4:30 p.m., respectively.

The annual Junior Livestock Sale will start at 11 a.m. Friday, August 21 with 4-H and FFA market hogs crossing the auction block first. Market lambs, goats, rabbits, started calves, and steers will follow through the day. This year, several 4-H dairy and lamb club charity benefit items will be sold at the end of the livestock sale.

Bedford County Crowns New Princess

Linda Williams
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — A vivacious, busy, and versatile Leslie Fetter will represent Bedford County at the state contest to be held in Harrisburg in September.

A graduate of Bedford High School, enrolled at Elizabethtown College for the fall term, Leslie captured the crown with a winning smile and her crowd pleasing skit.

Leslie rode a toy Massey Ferguson tractor and pulled a wagon with stuffed mini-Holsteins that mooed mechanically.

She plans to major in business and political science at college.

The daughter of Larry and Barb Fetter, Leslie helps to milk 30-head of Holsteins on her parents 126-acre farm.

She is employed at the local Carriage House Restaurant where she greets guests at her table by wearing her crown and banner.

Leslie was crowned by last year's queen, Shannen Lafferty. Lafferty said she made about 150 public appearances at stores, festivals, meetings, parades, schools and on television and radio on behalf of the dairy industry last year.

Also crowned at the pageant held in Loysburg in June, was Dairy Maid Nicole Ober, a ninth-grader at Northern Bedford. Outgoing Dairy Maid was Janelle Koontz who traveled more than 1,000 miles to participate in dairy promotions.

Kim Mountain, Northern Bedford, and Rhandee Dibert, Bedford, will both serve as alternate princesses. Rhandee was also named Miss Congeniality.

Alternate Dairy Maids known as "ambassadors," are Dana Dibert and Amy Beegle both from Bedford.

Already busy with the duties of her new title, Leslie Fetter has participated in 16 events during her first month's reign. Included were several parades, helping to create a giant ice cream sundae, dressing a calf, taking part in a street fair, and helping with a store promotion.

Leslie is befitting of her Dairy Princess title as she feeds the young cattle on the family farm.

Future Livestock Producers Learn Farm Management

FRANKLIN (Venango Co.) — While traditional 4-H camp provides a week of summer fun for thousands of young Pennsylvanians each year, 4-H coordinators have adapted the camp concept to help the state's future farmers get down to business.

This summer, more than 200 club members from northwest Pennsylvania will attend two-day overnight camps designed to teach the basics of livestock or dairy farm operation from feeding to financial management.

"The dairy overnight camp program was started several years ago to give members the technical resources and time to complete their dairy production projects," said Jeff Fowler, an extension agent who works with 4-H programs for Penn State Cooperative Extension in Venango County.

Based on the success of the dairy program, Fowler and Clarion County extension agent Patricia Gordon designed a similar camp with a series of workshops and field trips for members enrolled in livestock projects.

Club members aged 8 to 18 attend the specialized camps. Students are organized into junior, intermediate, and advanced workshop groups; with each class receiving an appropriate level of instruction.

"In the financial management workshop, we teach juniors how to enter costs and profits on financial registers and stress the importance of keeping their receipts," he said. "Older kids learn to compute asset depreciation and how to develop marketing strategies."

Fowler said overnight campers attend seven workshops during their two-day stay at the Venango County Fairgrounds, and that several classes are conducted through hands-on training at local farms.

In addition to learning the basis of farm finance, campers learn modern feeding techniques, farm safety, and livestock handling.

"We have one workshop for juniors that is devoted to tying knots to secure or transport livestock. These younger kids need to know more than just how to tie a square knot," he said. "At camp they learn how to tie a good quick-release knot and the various types of slip knots.

While the dairy and livestock camps are business-oriented, Fowler points out similarities between the overnight sessions and traditional 4-H summer camp. "We still find time to play volleyball and throw the frisbee around," he said. "And campers get a chance to make friends from other countries."

This year, 4-H club members from 11 northwest Pennsylvania counties are scheduled to attend the dairy camp, while the livestock session will train future farmers from eight northwest counties.

PERIMETER TREES CAN IMPROVE YOUR POULTRY FARM'S IMAGE IN THE COMMUNITY

Paul H. Patterson
Assistant Professor
Poultry Science

Typically we think of long rows of poplar or Douglas fir trees skirting an orchard or field as a structural barrier to break the wind and create a favorable microclimate for fruit trees, vegetables, or cereal grains. As windbreaks, they prevent structural damage to fruit-bearing limbs and reduce lodging of grains. Strategically placed, trees can even save energy by reducing winter wind velocity around farm buildings and rural homes, and provide shade in open areas.

While these are tangible benefits from planting trees around the farm, there are other less tangible advantages that can be realized by poultry farmers.

Maintaining good relations with your neighbors is critical for the survival of your farm in its present location. Often just the sight of the poultry houses or the activity of feed trucks, live haul or manure being loaded out can fix a negative image in the minds of your neighbors. Faced with the difficulty of maintaining a good relationship with your neighbors despite urban encroachment, you must not ignore your farm's image in the community.

Planting trees around the farm can create a positive image, just as an outstretched hand invites a handshake. Initially just the activity of planting trees on the perimeter of your property can be a positive step.

As the stand starts to develop, your property takes on a less commercial, landscaped appearance. Later, when the height of the trees blocks the view of the farm, activities on the farm and any negative images are virtually "out of sight, out of mind."

Using trees as a visual barrier should not be confused with building a windbreak that could reduce air flow to poultry houses. In Pennsylvania, winter winds come primarily from the west and northwest. By placing tree rows perpendicular to the wind, velocity is reduced approximately 200 feet downwind from the back of the tree stand.

Species And Spacing

Deciduous trees that grow rapidly and quickly establish a moderately dense barrier would include Lombardy poplar, Hybrid poplar, and Japanese larch. Spaced 4 feet apart in single rows, or 6 feet apart in a double row staggered arrangement, poplars will grow to 15 feet in 5 years.

Lombardy poplars are sensitive to fungal diseases and can break down over time, while Hybrid poplars are more durable. Neither will last more than 20 years and should be backed up with slower growing, more permanent stands of evergreens.

Where space is limited, a single row of evergreens may be sufficient. Trees with more dense growth include Colorado blue spruce, Douglas fir, Hemlock, and White pine. These should be planted 6 feet apart in single rows, and 8 feet apart with 4 or more rows. Multiple rows should be placed 12 feet apart. Each of these species will do well south of the Blue Mountains and east of the Susquehanna River.

Tree Size

Your choices for planting materials include seedlings, transplants, container-grown trees, or trees which are dug with a ball of soil and wrapped in burlap. Most of the trees listed above may be purchased from commercial nurseries.

Approximate costs (in 1991 estimates) for planting stock by size were as follows: 2-year seedlings, $.21-.79 each; 3-year seedlings, $.50-1.00; 5-year transplants, $1.10-2.79; and 2 foot transplants, $12-15.

Early spring planting is generally the most successful time to establish a visual barrier with trees. Assistance in planning a tree barrier or lists of commercial nurseries can be obtained from your county extension office or the local conservation district office.

Planting trees around the perimeter of the farm is never an elective for poor management. However, trees will reduce some of the dust and feathers your neighbors may experience when you are loading out birds or manure from the house.

Strategically placed trees can give the farm an attractive, landscaped appearance and leave a positive image of your farm in the minds of your neighbors.

For further information on tree species, planting and costs, obtain a copy of "Windbreaks and Shade Trees," Penn State Extension Circular 393, from your county extension office.

Praising 4-H, Judge Awards Shirk Supreme Champion Hog

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — A "special kind of eye appeal" about a hog in Class 12 of the crossbred light heavyweight division brought Jason Shirk's 235-pound Hampshire cross barrow (out of a Duroc/Yorkshire sow) to the attention of judge Frank Feeser of north central Maryland.

Feeser, who judged the Lebanon Hog Show on Monday, raises purebred Hampshires, Yorks, and Durocs on a 200-sow farrow-to-finish operation and praised the crossbred hog. The barrow was raised by Jason on his father's 1,500-head breeding stock operation.

Wearing his 4-H T-shirt, Jason, 10, South Lebanon Elementary, said he has been showing hogs for three years.

Feeser said the kids have a chance to see what the "leadership in this area is," he said. "They've learned some responsibility by taking care of these hogs, they have learned some record-keeping, and learned to be competitive.

"I started in 4-H," he said, holding back tears when he gave his decision, and praising the efforts of the 4-H and the local extension. "I didn't have the backing to support me like these kids do."

He told the audience that "we got to remember the youth, because this is what it's all about."

The supreme champion was selected from one of 22 crossbred market hog classes out of the light heavyweight division. Feeser said the exhibitors must be aware of the "important ingredients to survive in the hog business," he said. "Hogs have to grow, raise pigs, and go to the market and be a lean value to producer. If the producer has no lean product, the consumer won't buy."

Jason Shirk, 10, left, won supreme champion hog with his 235-pound Hampshire cross barrow on Monday at the Lebanon Fair. Show judge Frank Feeser praised the 4-H'ers for learning about the responsibilities the clubs teach.

The reserve supreme champion was a 255-pound Hampshire/Duroc cross barrow shown by Daryl Bomgardner out of the reserve in heavyweight Class 21. Daryl said his "4-H career is over at the Farm Show," but will continue to show in FFA. Feeser said the hog shows "leanness and enough length, including depth of front" to do well in the market.

Scott Grubb, 18, Annville-Cleona High School, showed the Hampshire and York breed winners. He has been showing nearly nine years, and belongs to the local 4-H club and his school's FFA chapter.

Roxanne Kirst showed the champion Chester White, a 215-pound barrow. She belongs to the Lebanon 4-H Livestock Club and attends Northern Lebanon School.

Holly Blatt, 18, won the FFA showing championship with her Duroc/Landrace/Hampshire, a 235-pound barrow. She has been showing about 11 years, and said she has waited long for a championship — this was her first championship of any kind.

Darren Grumbine won the champion 4-H showing competition with his 241-pound Hampshire barrow. He has been showing in 4-H about nine years.

Of particular note, in the Age 8 4-H Showing contest, Feeser awarded a best of show and second place to the remaining exhibitors because "they're all winners," he said, "because they're all out here, they're all trying."

In all, there were a total of 118 hogs and 65 exhibitors. Following is a list of show placings.

Darren Grumbine, 17, won champion 4-H showman on Monday at the Lebanon Fair with his purebred Hampshire barrow.

Off-Road Engine Emissions Topic Of Conference

WATERLOO, Iowa — Beginning in 1996, emissions regulations similar to those now in place for car and truck engines will be mandatory for many "off-road" diesel engines.

These engines power a wide range of industrial equipment — including agricultural tractors, earth-moving equipment, electrical generators, and aircraft ground support equipment.

The federal government is scheduled to authorize the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to begin enforcing new rules designed to reduce the air pollution characteristics of these off-road engines. The regulations are expected to correspond with similar regulations already adopted in California that call for certification to begin in 1996.

George Otterson, manager, strategic coordination for the Deere Power Systems Group, welcomed customers and media to a Conference on Engine Emissions and the Environment to discuss what regulations are anticipated, and how and what machinery will be affected. Deere Power Systems is a major supplier of diesel engines to this off-road market.

"John Deere builds only off-road engines," Otterson told the group, "and, for that reason, we bring a unique perspective to issue. While our competitors manufacture diesel powerplants for both on-highway trucks and off-road uses, the Deere Power Systems Group is 100 percent vested in off-highway engines. We have maintained a very close watch on the impending regulations and feel particularly qualified to deal with them."

Test engines are mounted on a dynamometer that can simulate various loads across the full RPM range. Operators can adjust fuel injection to determine optimum mix of air and fuel.

Hans Becherer, chairman and chief executive officer, Deere and Company, keynoted the conference with a strong statement on John Deere's commitment to building off-road power plants that comply with all anticipated regulations. He pointed to the company's multimillion dollar investment in equipment and technical personnel devoted exclusively to the design and development of reduced-emissions products.

Becherer put the issue in the context of Deere and Company's tradition of environmentally conscious activities that began with the filtering of plant smokestacks back in the 1920s.

"John Deere continues in its leadership role," Becherer said. "This is expressed in a corporate policy that states that the design of all John Deere products and operations must eliminate unacceptable environmental risks to customers, employees, neighbors, and the communities the company serves."

According to Robert Parker, manager, engine technology, at the John Deere Product Engineering Center (PEC), harmful emissions from off-highway equipment contribute a relatively small part of the total emission problem. Hence, measures to control off-road engine emissions have been put off until regulations for the larger emission sources, such as diesel engines used to power on-highway trucks, were in place.

"Everyone is aware that there are air quality problems particularly on the East and West

Improved Gravity Grain Shuttle From A&L

CLAREMORE, Okla. — The A&L 400GB Grain Shuttle from Parham Industries, Inc. is built for continued performance. New improvements include a new position gate wheel opener - away from the chute - a ladder that limits access by children, and one of the steepest slopes in the industry for excellent cleanout.

New engineering advancements include a bridge truss support between the side boards versus chains or pipe. A 12-ton running gear utilizes automotive type steering.

Wheels are 8-bolt hubs. The grain shuttle has "quick-hitch" extendable tongue and "micro-metering" feed out door adjustment that allows the door to move in less than 1/32 inch increments. The "self-locking" door will lock at any position without complicated brakes or clumsy catches.

Also new for this year is an optional 6 inch and 14 foot hydraulic auger that makes filling drills and planters easy. Call or write for more A&L 400GB Grain Shuttle information to Parham Industries, Inc., 1300 N. Industrial Blvd., Claremore, OK 74107, (918) 341-6310.

Drain Ball Plug Makes Nonleaking Seal

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — The Apollo Ball Plug, available from Tri-County Confinement Systems, conveniently makes a nonleaking seal for the clean-out, drain-in, pull-plug manure systems under hog pens — a major improvement over leaky, concrete plugs.

Sold as a plug and pipe adapter set, the Apollo Ball Plug is a thick, industrial-grade rubber ball that fits into a specially made PVC socket. The ball is filled with sand, which gives it weight but leaves it pliable for a very reliable seal.

Molded into its top is a sturdy ring, and attached to this ring is a stainless steel rod with a loop on the end. To open the drain for pen cleaning, the hog farmer can easily use a simple, long-handled hook to catch this loop and lift the ball from its socket.

The socket into which the Apollo Ball Plug seals can be installed on any 8-inch PVC drain pipe. In new construction of hog barns, it can be easily included in poured concrete flooring.

Tri-County Confinement Systems is the exclusive North American distributor of the Apollo Ball Plug. For more information, contact Terry Weaver, Tri-County Confinement Systems Inc., 608 E. Evergreen Rd., Lebanon, PA 17042, (717) 274-3488

Off-Road Engine Emissions

Coasts," Parker said. "The largest contributors are already being regulated, and now it is time to look at the smaller contributors such as agricultural and construction equipment. The purpose of this meeting is to let our costumers know what's going on in the emissions area, as well as what John Deere is doing to respond to the need for emission-certified engines."

Parker identified the off-road diesel engine exhaust components that have come under scrutiny by EPA, and stated that the oxides of nitrogen (NOx) need to be controlled. NOx combines with hydrocarbons also emitted at the exhaust, and this mixture, when exposed to sunlight, produces ozone. Ozone is a troublesome pollutant, particularly in high-population areas.

Rick Bishop and Nick Barsic, both with the performance and emissions development group at the John Deere PEC, gave technical presentations to illustrate how the challenges in controlling emissions are different for off-road engines because the equipment, the job demands, and the working conditions are different. Therefore, emission controlled truck engines are not suitable for off-road machines.

"We attack harmful emissions by evaluating how the engine burns its fuel," Parker said. "By changing the proportions of fuel and air, the timing of combustion, and the shape of the combustion chamber itself, we can reduce the presence of NOx and particulates as well as other exhaust materials such as carbon monoxide and oxides of sulphur that can be detrimental to the environment. However, the process involves trade-offs.

"Expressed most simply, as we tune the engine to reduce emissions, we lose certain performance characteristics. To regain the performance we have to increase displacement, add a turbocharger or intercooler, or accept diminished performance.

"Currently, all of our engines can be made to comply with the anticipated EPA emissions standards. Our challenge, and our highest priority between now and 1966, is to do this while minimizing the incremental costs and maximizing the performance."

The attendees also heard from Robert Anderson, manager, public policy planning, government affairs, who explained the complicated governmental process involved in formulating regulations. This legislation will impact entire industries including the agricultural, construction, public works, power generation, and marine businesses.

Anderson said Deere and Company has been working closely with the appropriate federal agencies since the Clean Air Act was passed by congress in 1963. Deere and Company formed a corporate-wide engine emission task force in 1988, bringing together domestic and international members from engineering, management and corporate staff. This group, working independently and with the Engine Manufacturers Association (EMA) and the Equipment Manufacturers Institute (EMI), has provided extensive data for the federal off-road study which is now in its final phase.

The attendees toured John Deere's engine emission test facility at the PEC where they saw numerous John Deere engines on dynamometers, running well within anticipated off-road emissions regulations.

Rich Volkstorf, manager, engine engineering, Deere Power Systems Group, said there has never been a question as to whether John Deere could comply with upcoming standards.

"Obviously, our engines will comply," Volkstorf said. "What we want to tell our customers is that in doing so, our engines will also maintain the level of excellence expected from John Deere, with the highest possible performance and price advantage."

PFU Sets Annual Picnic, Meetings

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Members and friends of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union (PFU) are invited to the organization's annual summer picnic to be held the evening of August 18 in conjunction with "Ag Progress Days" activities.

According to PFU President Robert Junk, the picnic will be an opportunity to discuss the issues facing rural Pennsylvania while having good food and some fun.

Also during Ag Progress Days, members of the PFU dairy and legislative committees will meet to review the results of "focus group" sessions held around the state. The groups identified major concerns and possible ways that PFU could help to address them.

"The committees will use the information provided by the focus groups and our annual policy statement to plan our legislative strategy for the rest of this year and into 1993," Junk said. "Our Executive Board also plans to meet around Ag Progress Days."

FAIR DAYS

Big Woods Day At Clinton Fair

Organizers of the Log Chop Competition at the Clinton County Fair have worked for some time promoting the event, which is scheduled for Saturday, August 8.

The time for the Woodsmen's Events is 2 p.m.

"Even people from the audience like to participate and that is part of the fun. We encourage that in a big way. Some of our competitors have very expensive, specialized equipment, but there is always an extra ax or cross-cut saw in the back of someone's truck that can be borrowed by anyone who wants to get into the act," said event co-chairman Bill Simcox. "This year we've added a class called single buck. Any style saw may be used. The competitor is timed in his speed at making one cut through a 10x10 cant."

Other events scheduled are the log chop, cross cut sawing, axe throw, log roll, and chain saw (5.5 cubic inch and under and 5.6 cubic inch and over). If there are enough M-tooth and modified chain saw participants, classes will be added to include them.

Premium monies are paid to five placings. Partner classes pay $30, $20, $15, $10, and $7.50. Single entry classes pay $20, $15, $10, $7.50, and $5. Registration fee is $2 per event. Competitors are asked to report to the horse show ring by 1 p.m. to register for the events.

For more information, call Bill Simcox, (717)748-7562.

Steam, Gas Engine Show August 7-9

FEDERALSBURG, Md. — The Eastern Shore Threshermen and Collectors Association, Inc. will be holding their 32nd annual Wheat Threshing, Steam and Gas Engine Show on August 7-9.

There will be a daily parade featuring the equipment, a large flea market with more than 125 dealers, and plenty of good food.

There will be plenty of free entertainment with J.R.'s Midnight Express on Friday evening and Country Grass on Saturday evening. Both shows start at 7:30 p.m. Church services will be held Sunday morning at 9 a.m. with gospel music by The Embert Family. # Butler County Names Extension Director

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Donna Zang has been named county extension director for Penn State Cooperative Extension in Butler County. In addition to assuming her new administrative responsibilities, Zang will continue to serve as 4-H coordinator.

Zang began her career with cooperative extension in 1979, coordinating the 4-H youth development program in Butler County. The program currently involves more than 500 4-H members and 90 volunteer leaders.

From 1985 to 1987, Zang acted as a computer support agent for 17 counties in western Pennsylvania, helping to implement computerization of county extension offices.

As time allows, Zang will continue to offer programs on agricultural land preservation, agricultural safety, and emergency preparedness.

Zang holds a B.S. in animal production from Penn State and is completing her master's degree in public administration from Slippery Rock University of Pennsylvania.

She is a member of the state and national chapters of the Association of County Agricultural Agents and the Association of Business and Professional Women.

Zang resides in Evans City with her husband, Robert Zang, Jr., and their two sons, Jason and Garrett.

World Limousin Conference Hosts 16 Countries

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — Cattlemen from 16 countries met in Fort Worth recently as part of the biannual World Limousin Cattle Conference.

As the week-long meeting began, there were 201 international guests signed up to participate in events ranging from industry education programs to American cultural tours.

"We're excited to have so many breeders from around the world taking part in this conference," said Dr. Wayne Vanderwert, executive vice president of the North American Limousin Foundation (NALF). He believes the number of individuals attending the event and the number of countries they represent underscores the rapid worldwide expansion of the Limousin breed of cattle.

Specifically, the Limousin breed has posted five consecutive years of record growth based on annual registrations. Likewise, new memberships and transfers through NALF have climbed steadily during the same time period at an average of 18 percent and an average of 16 percent per year, respectively.

In addition to the international guests who have come to Fort Worth, there are 129 U.S. cattlemen signed up to take part in some of the conference events. They are part of the 1,000-plus contingent of American Limousin breeders in Fort Worth for the Lone Star Shoot-Out National Junior Limousin Show and Congress and the All-American Limousin Futurity.

Prior to the official World Conference and national show week, 173 of the participants took part in one or both of the preconference tours through the Midwest and Texas. Stops included Limousin operations as well as other agricultural programs such as grocery stores and semen collection centers.

"Between the World Conference and our annual shows which have shattered records this year for the number of entries, this week represents the single largest Limousin event ever held in the United States," said Vanderwert.

A Satisfied Customer...
JOHN R. RODGERS, of Belleville had three styles of fencing installed totaling a mile on his farm. John offers these comments. "I looked at others fencers and determined that Beaver Fence Systems had the people that could do a quality job and a quality fence to keep the cattle where I want them. The flexibility of the fence gives me full utilization of the land with maximum efficiency. The job was completed in two days including a barnyard fence, plus 6 and 4 wire pasture fencing."

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds
BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.
MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.
ON-FARM MIXING
A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that
- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

IXL
Anti-friction Metal Conditioner

Efficiency is our Newest Resource

Science brings a new dimension to Anti-Friction
An oil additive metal conditioner product ahead of its time, IXL will give your equipment priceless protection. IXL gives protection far superior to just oil or lubricants. IXL is specifically designed to be used in: (NEW) and (USED) gasoline & diesel engines, compressors, automatic & manual transmissions, hydraulics, gear boxes, bearings of all types, turbos, pumps, and much more. IXL is a metal conditioner which treats surface metals 3 to 5 microns deep, thereby making the metal surfaces harder, denser and smoother. These results are minimum metal wear, giving maximum engine and machine life. IXL reduces heat, friction, and wear, up to 60% without changing tolerances, reducing friction will release energy previously expended to overcome ordinary mechanical resistance. This energy is now available as a positive force, working to increase power, performance and fuel savings. IXL also helps maintain and recondition seals and gaskets, by keeping these items pliable, firm, and flexible. It will help prevent leaks, however IXL is not a lubricant fortifier, such as PTFE, Moly, or graphite. IXL is biodegradable, NON-TOXIC and environmentally safe. IXL is one of the highest quality products on the market today. IXL is satisfaction guaranteed or your money back.

Big and small equipment of all makes and models took to the fields at Ag Showcase this week. In the photo, the haymaking machines are at work.

Ag Showcase: Bigger And Better

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

FAIR HILL, MD—Take your pick of colors. They were all represented by the various agricultural equipment manufacturers at the "bigger and better" ag showcase held this week in conjunction with the Cecil County Fair.

In addition to the field full of working farm machines and tractors, a number of good topics were covered by speakers at the health fair tent.

Dr. Jim Russel, marketing specialist, University of Maryland, said he did not believe we have seen the lows in beans to date, and he expects to see $5.30 to $5.40 beans in the November contract on the futures market. This is expected as an early harvest low. And in September corn he expects lows of about $2.15 to $2.20.

But all this depends on the weather. Since the carryover stocks are rather tight, the market is especially dependent on and sensitive to projected yields.

The Cecil County Emergency Management Team gave demonstrations of what to do if you or someone you know gets caught in a piece of farm machinery. The team gave five important steps to take in this kind of emergency. 1. Check the patient's airway. Breathing and the freedom to breathe is most important. 2. Then check circulation and bleeding. Stop bleeding by using artery pressure points or a torniquet.

4. Then check for other not as obvious disabilities. After you have done all you can for the obvious injury, look for other injuries. In case of a back or neck injury don't move the patient.

The team especially urged farmers to learn CPR because of the dangers involved in farming. The longer it takes to get help the more permanent the injury is likely to be. The CPR course can be taken in four hours. And if you save someone's life becaue you know what to do, the four hours will be very well spent.

The group of farmers who attended the Ag Showcase hear the Emergency Management Team's recommendations how to save a life in a farm accident.

Each year all the farm equipment dealers and manufacturers in the area bring equipment to this event. Farmers from more distant areas now come to the ag showcase because they can see the equipment in action and they can compare competitive pieces of equipment.

About 75 different tractors and pieces of equipment were part of the Ag Showcase this year.

Kimberton Sheep Show

WILLIAM ESBENSHADE
Chester Co. Correspondent

KIMBERTON (Chester Co.) — It's fair time! And the Kimberton Fair had the honor of kicking off the season.

Baaing and bleating, some cooperative and poised and others more rambunctious, the sheep show entrants welcomed the new season.

The fair soon became a whirlwind of activity. No sooner did one class finish judging than another one began — more often than not, with the same exhibitors.

Think it is easy to get a photo of Bruce Snyder and Amy Eshelman with their champion market lambs? It's not. "I don't have time. I have to get right back out for the next class," Amy said. And Bruce was out there again, too.

As a matter of fact, four exhibitors combined took a total of 10 blue and red ribbons.

Here's a rundown of the evening's results:

YORK (York Co.) — A junior two-year Holstein exhibited by Daphne Doll took Supreme Champion honors at the York County 4-H Dairy Roundup.

Daphne, 12, took the all-breeds and Holstein champion titles with Dar-Dale Gold Debbie, a Tri-Day Valiant Gold daughter homebred at the Dale and Darla Doll family's Glen Rock farm.

The supreme champion honor was the first for Daphne, who has been showing in 4-H and open class competition for five years. She is a member of the Southwest dairy club.

The annual roundup was held July 23 during the county's 4-H Fair at the York Fairgrounds. More than one hundred animals were exhibited by 44 dairy members in the competition, marking a resurgence of participation in the county's three 4-H dairy clubs.

Type conformation judge was Bonnie Remsburg, Maryland, while Ginger Myers of Littlestown was showmanship official.

AYRSHIRE

Ayrshire showing was a family event for Jesse and Jacob Stambaugh, Spring Grove.

Jason Stambaugh claimed the senior and grand champion honors with his aged cow Ray-Knoll Julius Jamaica. His reserve senior and grand champion was Pr Kenworth Pudge Puppy, a three-year old.

Junior champion title went to Jesse Stambaugh's intermediate calf, Triple-J Legend Annie, also named best bred and owned. Reserve heifer placing went to Jesse for his intermediate yearling, Triple-J Gemini Andy.

Pigs in the tobacco field catch the eye of motorists on North Mastersonville road in Lancaster County. An informant who did not want to be identified said the pigs move around some and attract a lot of attention. Neighobrs thought this photo should be in Lancaster Farming.

Food for the hogs mysteriously appears from time to time. From all appearances their favorite foods include water mellon, corn, milk, and beer. However chewing tobacco, seems to be no problem at all.

Let CTI Forks lift your profits. Lower your costs.

Why pay more to move material at your jobsites? Especially when you can increase a loader's or backhoe's versatility and get it and your operator to do more for you? On many jobs. CTI Forks eliminate the need for a separate forklift. And, no other fork attachment can match CTI's in price, simple mounting and years of dependability. Just ask any one of the thousands of customers who own them.

What's more, CTI Forks aren't limited to one machine. Weld extra sets of brackets to the top lip of a loader bucket with similar capacity. When one machine isn't using the forks, a second or third machine can. CTI Forks help crews move these loads. Pipe Conduit. Lumber. Brick. Sheeting. Roofing tiles. Any palletized load.

Mounts to your loader bucket in seconds. An operator simply positions his bucket so that the welded-on brackets slip under the mounting bar. Then, he rolls back the bucket to secure the fit. Seven models.

WHAT DO YOU WANT FROM YOUR COMBINE?

DEPENDABILITY?

Moving when the grain and weather conditions are fit: that is what CASE IH's Axial Flow Combines do. They are built tough to last– many are running over 4,000 hours. How long will an axial flow last? We don't know yet.

RELIABILITY?

Compared to conventional or other style rotary combines, the Axial Flow puts more premium quality grain in the tank and leaves less grain in the field. Why else do most all the growers of food quality corn own axial flow's?

A GOOD DEALER?

C.B. Hoober & Son, Inc. have specialized in Axial Flow combine service since their introduction in 1977 (5) Hoober servicemen work on combines year-round. Where else can you get that support?

BERG BUILDS EVERYTHING BETTER FOR BARNS

Load Wet Manure Fast...

...with a Berg Auger Manure Conveyor! Used in tandem with our barn cleaner, the continuous spiralling action of its big, 12" revolving auger minimizes roll-back and keeps the manure flowing steadily into your spreader.
We install and service!

Berg Belt Feeders

Berg's unique plow design delivers equal rations, quickly and quietly, to all animals at feed bunks in single or multiple lots or in straight-line stanchion barn set-ups. An economical, non-reversing, electric motor powers both the plow and Berg's high-volume, deep-trough, continuous-loop belt. An automatic tightener lengthens belt life.

Power up with Ford PowerStar™ tractors
The new standard in 66 to 106 hp!

- New transmission choices, including the 16x16 Pulse Command™

NEW! Exclusive design produces best-ever bales

The unique New Holland Models 650 and 660 Roll-Belt™ round balers make the best quality bales ever. Tight bales — dense bales. Good-looking, square-shouldered bales that hold up to the weather. The patented Roll-Belt™ design means fast, sure core formation, even in the toughest crops. The adjustable hydraulic belt-tensioning system puts maximum bale density control at your fingertips. And, you can choose from three optional automatic tying mechanisms for the smoothest package ever.

Harvest your crop with the best in self-propelled harvesting

If you custom harvest as well as chop your own forage, a self-propelled harvester like the Model 1915 can help you harvest more crop at peak quality. The fuel-efficient 270-horsepower diesel engine and the 24-inch, 12-knife cutter head gives you high-capacity day-in and day-out harvesting. And the exclusive automatic knife sharpener and automatic shearbar adjuster, called Accucut™, combine to give you precision-sharpened knives and a reset shearbar, all from the comfort of the cab

Stop in today and let us show you the other features of the "1915." Or better yet, let's set up a time to demonstrate this harvester in your own field.

Load... unload faster and easier

When you're working the big loads you need the Super Boom advantage — extra reach.

With more forward dump reach you can center load your largest spreader from one side so you get an even load. The result: faster loading, fuller loads and easier unloading.

With level bucket lift you load more and lift higher... with less spillback. And, with a longer wheelbase there's more stability and safety. So, why get stuck with anything else?

Find out just how good a skid-steer loader can be.

Capacity and efficiency for fast harvesting

When it comes to harvesting, you can't beat the heavy-duty performance that's built into the New Holland Model 790 forage harvester. Performance starts at the cutterhead The 19 11/16-inch wide, 12-knife cutterhead delivers a fine uniform chop that's just right for most silage feeding operations And an electric clutch gives instant response and positive control on the reversing gearbox The Model 790 is available with either a 540-rpm or a 1000-rpm PTO drive

Stop in today and trade for the performance leader in harvesters— the "790" from Ford New Holland.

First in durability

Surveys show owners rate New Holland grinder-mixers as the most durable That's because Ford New Holland builds them right and backs them with quality parts and service The Model 358 has a 125-bushel tank that's specially designed to eliminate bridging. An optional electronic scale assures accurate control of rations. Stop in and see the durable Model 358 grinder-mixer

Seeing is believing

Every minute you can save at the blower means more loads per day and more overall productivity. Let us demonstrate the New Holland Model 40 forage blower and we believe you'll agree you can increase your silage productivity.

The Model 40, with 20 percent greater tip speed than previous models, center fills silos over 80 feet high. The Whirl-A-Feed® table spins the crop into the blower housing at high speed, making more efficient use of your tractor's horsepower.

See us soon for a demonstration of the Model 40.

ELS Manure Pumps & Spreaders Check Ours Before You Buy!

We have a new design manure pump that we feel will chop & pump more solids for the money (and HP). Bearings run in oil. Knives make over 3000 cuts per min. Stationary or portable, manual or hydraulic lift. Rent one or buy one, but be sure to try one! We also have our standard model, works well for less bedding with less HP.

We also have semi & liquid spreaders ground drive in 3 standard sizes, also PTO drive & special orders.

We make expanded metal tractor wheels w or w/o shocks, the wheel with more grip & less slip. Check our prices!

Use our forms to make your own poured walls, round or square pits, retaining walls, basement or barn walls. 2x8 panels up to 190' in one pour. Cheaper & much stronger than block walls filled with concrete. We sometimes have used equipment.

If Farming Isn't Enough Work, Try Becoming A Dairy Of Distinction

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MOHRSVILLE (Berks Co.) — Add several additions to your already long list of dairy chores (you know, feeding the calves, cleaning out the stalls, and milking the cows) — try installing a manure storage facility. Or a concrete trench silo.

To top it off, try repairing an old pillar made from riverbottom rock at the entrance to the farm. (Oh, and don't forget to finish construction on that new house you're building.)

"There's always something that needs to be done," said Ruth Ohlinger, of Reu-Hel Farms, Inc. Ruth, together with husband Elwood and their daughter Constance and husband Scott Troutman, manage a 115-milking cow dairy herd.

They were honored recently with the Dairy of Distinction Award, which recognizes farms for their beauty and overall contributions to the dairy industry.

Taking care of an older dairy can be a full-time chore in itself, let alone adding more cows and more facilities to the task. But the farm family has been able to do just that, despite mounting development pressures, declining milk prices, and other factors which put many dairies at risk.

The Ohlingers and Troutmans manage a completely registered Holstein herd, which includes 115 milking and 132 replacement stock in freestall and stanchions. Milking, to a pipeline, is on DHIA, with averages of 22,600 lbs., 809f, 723p.

"When we got married, my husband started working for my dad," said Ruth. Raised on a dairy farm, Elwood worked land adjacent to the farm they now own. The farm, once owned by a local funeral director, raised beef. "When we bought it, it was a run-down beef farm," said Ruth. Her father, Reuben Field, purchased the farm in 1945, and the dairy has had registered Holsteins as far back as 1950. (The prefix is a combination of Reuben's and his wife, Helen's, names.)

The corporation owns about 354 acres (305 tillable) and rents an additional 210 acres. They raise 300 acres of corn, 143 of alfalfa, eight of oats, 29 of soybeans, three of rye, and 49 acres remain in pasture.

But it was some improvements to the farm, including many painting and repairs over the years, that garnered recognition from the Dairy of Distinction Program.

One of the improvements that stands out is repair to a stone pillar, which Ruth believes was vandal-

Swamp Creek Swiss Awarded Dairy Of Distinction For Fritz's

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Correspondent

GARRETT (Somerset Co.) — Robert (Tim) Fritz and his wife Judy merely shrugged an affirmative "yeah, sure go ahead," when their son Robert Jr., 22, mentioned filling out a Dairy of Distinction application for their farm, Swamp Creek Swiss. Almost immediately, they continued on their daily business and forgot about the idea, especially Judy.

But Robert Jr. didn't. He had his dad sign the properly completed 1992 application. First thing they knew, Janet Hileman showed up with her trusty camera. She was one of the chairpersons for District 14; one of 10 comprising Pennsylvania. Her mission? Find Dairies of Distinction.

Even though Tim says they do things simply at Swamp Creek Swiss, it is that very concept that arrests one's eye at the pretty mountain location. A big, friendly brick farmhouse stands elegantly in the shade of a lush green, tree-filled yard. The red, clay rectangles were baked in a kiln fired on the same property years ago. Complimenting the scene are long white shutters, flanking long windows with glass that is now storm-resistant, double pane thickness.

Blacktop covers the front walk and the big drive-in parking area separating the barn from the house. To the one side scenic mountains are pressed into several valleys.

Tim's dad and granddad first farmed the land but he says his dad kept on living in town. Tim tried living in town but couldn't adapt to the inconvenience of traveling for work. Finally, he says he built a new house nearby but ultimately moved into the farmhouse formerly occupied by his grandparents, and began to remodel it.

While Tim says his dad was a devout Holstein man, Tim has become a Swiss man and declares he won't change from his Brown Swiss dairy herd which he began some 10 years ago. Tim and Robert can talk all afternoon about the benefits of the seldom-found breed, at least in this predominantly Holstein county.

Intensive grazing is another thing about which the father/son duo is mighty enthusiastic. "It's worked real good for us," said Tim. "Between two feeding systems, we've really seen an increase in milk production and big savings in feed costs." That's in the five years since they began their rotational grazing program.

"Another thing," said Tim, "the cows do everything for you. They haul their own milk, feed and manure." Tim adds proudly, "Brown Swiss really shine. Our cows, you gotta' watch 'em," he warns. "They'll run over you to get to the paddock."

Judy agrees. "Harry (nickname for Robert, Jr.) has the cows follow him at a walk or a run."

The 50 milking cows are grazed in 22 paddocks that are each about two acres in size. Every 24 hours they are moved into a new one. Tim said they also keep some 40 young Swiss animals.

"They (Swiss breed cows) are a lot healthier," said Robert, who later exhibited an entire, award-ribbon-covered, bedroom wall for his winnings in Somerset County,

Pennsylvania Winners Announced

KINGSTON (Luzerne Co.) — The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program is proud to announce the Pennsylvania Winners of the 1992 Dairy of Distinction Award. 55 farms in Pennsylvania have been selected as new recipients of this honored award.

The Dairy of Distinction program has been operating in Pennsylvania for six years. Including this year's winners a total of 468 Pennsylvania dairy farms have been recognized through this program.

Farms that apply are judged on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds, and surroundings. The winning farms receive an attractive 18x24 inch sign which is placed at the roadside. Winning entries are judged annually to insure that they continue to meet the standards of excellence set by the program.

For further information on the Dairy of Distinction Program, contact the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. at (717)283-2204.

ized in the spring of 1988. It was knocked over one night by what Ruth said may have been high school kids.

For a while, the pile sat there, and, said Ruth, "I couldn't find anybody to set this thing up," she said. "It just looked so sloppy laying out there." Ruth said the family wanted to enter the Dairy of Distinction contest, but couldn't do it with the "dumb pillar out there — it was just a pile of stones!" she said.

So, when a new house was constructed for Connie and Scott in May 1991, Ruth asked the stone mason to repair the pillar. (In the past, the other pillar had also been knocked down, accidentally, but was put back in place). It was difficult to find someone, because "there aren't many real stone masons around anymore," she said.

The original stone used came from local river rock. The mason decided to use the same, but newer, material.

But other concerns occupy their time, including working land recently purchased from a nearby farm. So far, however, the family hasn't been approached to sell their farm, according to Ruth.

Connie and Scott, in addition to farming, also raise two children, Jason, 4 and Eric, 1½. Ruth's daughter Kathy Geisinger and her husband Barry also help on the farm.

In the meantime, Ruth said the family is happy about the recognition.

"I think it's more a personal thing," she said. When asked if she will include the recognition and the picture of the award in the family scrapbook, she replied, smiling, "Oh, yes."

The Ohlinger family recently painted their dairy prefix to the side of the barn.

Martinsburg and Harrisburg with his Brown Swiss cow.

"Disposition and health-wise, and production-wise," said Tim, "they stay around longer. We have 12 cows with four generations in the barn."

Robert said the better health mileage for Brown Swiss comes from their origin in Switzerland.

"They are more adaptable to any climate than any other breed," said Tim. "That's what hurt Swiss," he said, "they all get shipped to South Amrica because they adapt so well.

"I wish more people would get one Swiss cow to see what they are like," said Tim. "I think they would be surprised what they can do."

Robert is quick to add that the Brown Swiss is the only cow to ever capture the title of Supreme Champion two times at the World Expo.

On his 205 acres, aided by 70 more rented ones, Tim plants about 50 acres of corn and 25 of oats. The remainder that isn't prime grazing land, is made into haylage and hay. So during the fall and winter months a total mix ration is used to feed the herd. Haylage and corn silage are blended with commercial grain.

Judy and Tim FDritz relax for a moment on the front porch of their home at Swamp Creek Swiss Farm.

Robert Fritz Jr. shows ribbons on his bedroom wall. Showing his Brown Swiss cow in the county and state shows has been rewarding.

Genetic benefits of breeding Swiss are immeasurable, according to Tim. "You couldn't afford the best in Holstein (sires) but we're years ahead with the Swiss," he said. "We always try to use bulls of good milk production." And because the Brown Swiss Association is said to push a lot of young sires the Fritzes say they already have some daughters in their barn out of young sires. So there's more than one winner when a dairyman is occasionally willing to test the breeding potential of a young bull owned by someone else.

Tim and Robert do their own artificial inseminating of the female bovine, but Tim says Robert takes over 90 percent of the time.

"Sometimes this farming can be tough," said Tim, telling how Pamela, a prized 2-E cow with four generations on the farm, almost died from gangrene mastitis last winter. It was really rouch and go for awhile, but the productive cow pulled through it and shows signs of a strong comeback in milk production.

In 1991 Swamp Creek Swiss awarded a second place in DHIA herd improvement at Pennsylvania state banquet. That is something of which they are justifiably proud. Tim said the overall herd production just keeps improving, attributing the success to the dual feeding system he uses.

Jennifer, 19, a student at Cambria-Rowe Business College, Johnstown, is second of the two Fritz children. She isn't usually in the barn, but usually found with more feminine interests.

Judy helps with the barn work; although she is employed part time as an aide at an area nursing

ADAMS

Last year's drought was extremely hard on Robel Acres, operated by Robert A. Whiteford and family in New Oxford. Luckily, the Whitefords live near enough to the Conewago Creek and were able to irrigate the crops using 4,400 feet of portable hose. Two farms are within reach of the creek, which helped them through a tough growing season. The 300-acre (260-tillable) farm milks 90 registered Holsteins (90 replacement stock) using a double-8 parlor and freestalls. Herd average is more than 17,000 lbs., and the farm has been in the family since 1958. Robel Acres is managed by Whiteford and wife Elenora together with son Bill, 34 and wife Joni. (The prefix is a combination of ROBert and ELenora.) They grow about 120 acres of hay for haylage and 140 acres of corn, in addition to barley and wheat. The herd is on a TMR managed by Agway.

Ronald and Diane Burry and three children, Jarrod 15, Michael 11, and daughter Erin 3, don't own the farm, but they keep it nice enough as tenants to qualify it for a Dairy of Distinction. They rent the barn and pasture and some acreage at another farm for crops. They have about 20 registered Holstein milking cows and about the same number of replacements. They've been farming since March 1986. Ronald had been a herdsman for another dairy farm which went out of business during the federal buyout program. However, the kept some cows, because of the interest shown by son Jarrod, who was in 4-H. The number of cows fits well in the 21-stall stanchion barn. However, it's not enough to run as a totally self-sufficient dairy. Ronald works away from the farm. The barn itself, was burned down about 1975 and renovated by its owners. The Burrys took over running the operation and just recently built a house on land they bought from the owners.

BEAVER

Fred Pflugh has had his share of rough times since starting on his own in 1979, but he has managed to keep his 112-acre farm, 65 registered and grade milking Holsteins and about 35 replacement heifers in top shape and well-care for. Lately, because of the drought-induced lack of quality feed, his rolling herd average has dropped, but not his desire to do an efficient job. Of the acreage, about 85 acres are tillable. He rents additional fields for forage and grain production. The farm has a 30-stall stanchion barn which he uses to milk the cows, pasturing the herd in one area and pasturing the dry cows and heifers in another area. The farm is attractive because of the numerous trees he planted and the landscaping he's done. The barn is painted slate grey with a burgandy trim. The house is red brick and he has a large flag pole in front from which he waves an 8-foot by 12-foot U.S. Flag. From the road, the farm lies across a hill and he keeps the road frontage banks mowed to give a well manicured appearance.

BEDFORD

This 210-acre dairy of distinction, operated by Daniel L. Over in Woodbury, milks a herd of 57 registered Holsteins with 50 replacement stock. Herd average is 22,800 pounds, 731p, 842f. Over purchased the operation in October 1991, which has always been a dairy operation. Andrew Wentz is employed full-time on the farm.

home. She said that on weekends, especially, they take turns in the barn.

Papering the ten-foot high walls in her lovely house was a challenge for Judy, but she tackled the job herself. She said she believes the old-timers who put transoms over all the doors when they built the old houses must have wanted more work to do. But transoms there are and those at the front door have red glass in them.

Asked about the landscaping which helped identify the farm as a Dairy of Distinction, Judy said it just sort of fell into place. "Everyone works at it, but we don't plan it. We all sort of putter around the yard and garden," she said.

Cash cropping forms the backbone of Rocky-Side Farm, operated by Carl J. Yoder and family in Osterburg. They farm a total of 1,100 tillable acres and milk 80 registered Holsteins from a tiestall to pipeline. Herd average is 20,200 lbs., 730f, 640p on DHIA. The dairy and crop farm includes 700 acres of corn, 70 acres of wheat, 100 acres of alfalfa, 100 acres of mixed hay, and 175 acres of soybeans. The Yoders moved to the farm from Chester County about two years ago to escape the crowded and overdeveloped conditions in the county. Carl farms with wife Jane and children Jeffrey, 13; Jessica, 11; and Jaclyn, 8. Jane said Jeffrey "is a big help, and drives the tractor and truck" and does other work on the farm. The girls help with the calves and cleaning up the milking and feeding areas. Two full-time personnel work on the farm, Chris Bechtel and Joe Clark.

BERKS

Tim and Teresa Kissling and son Andrew, along with parents Charles and Betty, farm 250 acres and milk 75 registered Holsteins that produce 25,100 lbs. of milk. The farm has been in the family since 1848 and in the Kissling name since 1872. They do ET work and sell breeding stock. In addition, Tim is a consultant to other dairy farmers in the area.

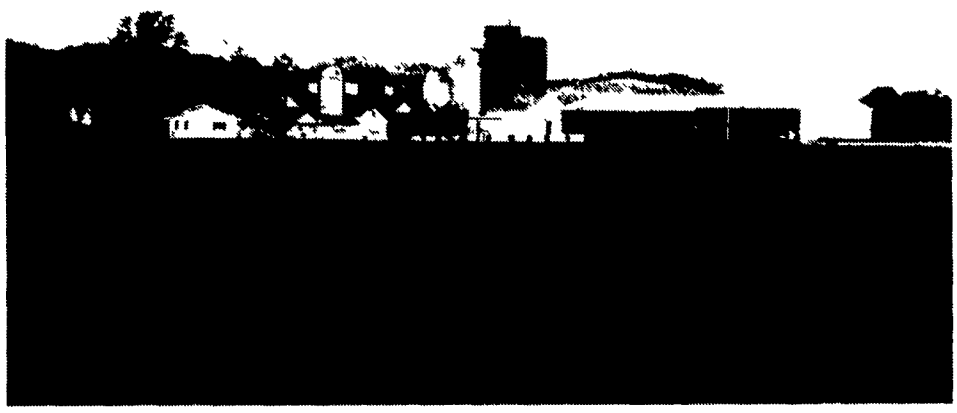
At Caernarvon Farm, the Andrew Stoltzfus family milk 110 registered and grade Holsteins that average 20,600 lbs. of milk. They are well known for their excellent breeding and do extensive flushing for embryos out of the top five percent of their genetic base. Embryos are placed in the lower 85 percent of the herd, and the remaining 10 percent carry their own calves. They have sold embryos to farmers in many foreign countries. They are the third generation on the farm.



Reu-Hel Farms, Inc., is a partnership between Elwood and Ruth Ohlinger and Scott and Constance Troutman and is located in Berks County between Mohrsville and Daubesville. The Ohlingers are the parents of Constance. Another daughter, Cathleen, and husband Barry also help on the farm. The Troutmans have two small children Jason 4, and Eric 1.

This farm family owns 350 acres and rent another 180 acres to feed their herd of registered Holsteins. The herd of 130 cows average 22,600 lbs. of milk. They also have about that many calves and heifers. The cows are housed in free-stalls and milked in a tie-stall barn. The farm was purchased by the family in 1945.

BLAIR

D.E. Hileman Farms, which includes 250 acres, milks 80 head of grade Red and White Holsteins, with a herd average of 20,500 lbs., 660p, and 750f. The herd includes 50 head of replacement stock. The Williamsburg farm, purchased by the family in 1930, has been a Holstein operation since 1966. Donald farms with son, Donald E. Jr., 35 and full-time hired help Alton Hileman, 35 and grows about 120 acres of corn and 100 acres of alfalfa.

Point View Farm has been named for the twin peaks on the mountains behind the Bigelow family house, off Rt. 22 in Williamsburg. This dairy of distinction manages 150 acres (140 tillable) and milks a 60-head herd of registered and grade Holsteins. Milking is from tiestall to pipeline, and averages are 19,000 lbs., 641f, and 582p. The farm, purchased in 1971, is managed by William M. Bigelow, wife June, and son William R. Two other sons are members of DHIA — Richard A., 33 is a milk tester for Blair County and David A., 28, is a fieldman for DHIA in western Pennsylvania. The farm grows 60 acres of alfalfa and 60 acres of corn, and the rest is in pasture and woodlot.

BRADFORD

Upham Farm, LeRaysville, owned by John and Jane Upham, is unique for several reasons, but its Welsh design barn, a harbinger from the days his great grandfather built it in 1889, sets it apart. The barn is three stories. John can drive to the top story to store hay on either side and there is an old grain storage area which sees other use now. A cupola on the roof adds to the unique aspect of the barn. Jane said it is not only a pretty barn, but very functional. The house, a white, wooden frame two-story, was built soon after the barn. The farm is a Century Farm in addition to being selected as a Dairy of Distinction. The barn, which is one of the few remaining to mark the early Welsh settlement, is painted red with white trim. The farm itself sits back a quarter-mile from the hardtop road, 20 miles from the nearest town and red light. Visitors to the area regularly stop to photograph the farm setting, with fall, summer and winter scenes garnering the most attention. Ponds on the property, flower beds, a row of tall, decorative cedar trees. The farm itself has grown over the years, both in the amount of acres and in the number of families it supports. With purchases in recent years, John and Jane now own 968 acres and with John's father's 200 acres and rented property, the family crops about 400 acres, milks about 100 grade Holsteins in the 96-tie stall barn and during the winter, operates a sawmill, using lumber from the farms property. The entire operation supports five families

Two families comprise Landis Brothers Rolling Valley Farms near Troy. Working at the farm, there's Arlen Landis, wife Marilyn, their son Matt, 18, and Len Landis and Barbara, with their two sons working parttime, 24 Chris, and Josh, 17. About 225 tillable acres, an 80-stall stanchion barn renovated about 20 years ago and a free stall heifer barn round out the husbandry buildings. The milk is sold to Pollio Dairy, in New York. They raise all registered Holsteins which are merchandised as a side business. The 200-foot long barn if painted red with white trim. There are three houses on the property — a townshouse, the main farm house which came with the farm when it was bought in 1969, and another house which Arlen and his family are living in. Woodlands and pasture, five silos, a rolling hilly area, and a low traffic area set the dirt-road frontage farm apart from others. However, the farm, located on Alba Mountain, is close to Alba town.

BUTLER

Wayne and Wanda Hixon farm on about 100 acres of land about 30 miles from Pittsburgh, but have mostly dairy farming neighbors. The farm was purchased about 1941 by Wayne's father Don. The family farm operation centers on milking 60 registered Holsteins in a stanchion barn. The Hixon's children include Jeff, Andy and Ann. Jeff works full time on the farm, while the two are in high school. They raise most of their own feed using two silos and getting an average of about 18,000 pounds of milk. They don't show and haven't had the herd classified, though they do some marketing through the Holstein Association and to individuals. The farm is decorated with lots of flowers around the buildings. The barnyard and manure areas are away from the road way. The farm sits close to the road and has a lot of road frontage which is kept closely mowed. The barn is painted white while the other buildings are red. The house is white aluminum siding with an addition added about four years ago. The flower beds are decorated with cows silouettes and the flowers are mostly impatiens and different perennials.

CENTRE

Stringers Sand Ridge Farm, operated by William J. and Joyce Stringer, includes 630 acres (375 rented) and milks 60 registered and grade Holsteins. The Stringers milk twice a day from a tiestall to pipeline. Averages are 22,662 lbs., 729p, 846f on DHIA. The farm, a dairy since taken over by the family in 1958, was purchased by William J. Stringer in 1980. William and brother Jeffrey manage the farm, together with William's wife, Joyce, and children Craig, 13; Brian, 11; Karen, 8; and Scotty, 4.

CHESTER

The family dairy farm of Harold and Esther Bare is located along Swan Road east of Gap in Chester County. Along with their three children, Rodney, 22, Michelle 20 and Ronald 18, they milk 70 registered Holstein cows in a milking parlor. The rolling herd average is 21,100m and 800f. First calf heifers milk 100 lbs. and mature cows up to 130 lbs. with no special attention different than the other cows in the free-stall barn. The farm is known as the old Kauffman farm and has been in Esther's family for over 105 years.

A modern heifer facility was installed about three and a half years ago on the dairy of distinction farm operated by Winan O. and Joan McCall, Parker. The McCalls, together with son Allen, 31; Greg, 23 and help from Scott, 26 (an engineer) and Sandra, 30 (who works for the federal government), milk about 125 grade Holsteins (with about 130-140 replacement stock) three times a day using a double-6 parlor. Milking pounds average about 19,000, and the recent installation of the heifer barn helped garner recognition, as well as improve the profitability of the farm, according to Winan. The farm, which encompasses 450 acres, including rented land, has been in the family for 90 years, and became all-dairy in 1955.

Vern Belchner remembers the horrors of the day back in 1987 when the heifer barn built down on the Sandy Ridge Farm. But with the help of the local Holstein club, the PFA, local Amish neighbors, and friends and family, the "barn raising" restored the farm and a new freestall barn was in place. In 1990, Sandy Ridge, operated by Vern and Mark Belchner, purchased a nearby farm, which brought tillage acreage to 200. Another 228 acres include some rented land and about 200 of them are in woodlands. Much of the location is "real sandy, gravelly ground," said Vern, from which they have to try to make haylage. The cattle includes 66 milking registered and grade Holsteins and 66 heifers. Milking is from a freestall barn, stanchions to a pipeline. The farm also includes a 100-hog farrow-to-finish operation. The farm, a dairy since 1909, bottled and sold milk for a few years in the 1970s. Vern farms with wife, Diane, and children Valiery, 10; Lora, 8; and Bradley, 5, "who likes to help a lot," said Vern. Also, Mark's family helps, with wife Theresa and children Joshua, 5; Bethany, 3; and Lyssa, 2 mos.

CLEARFIELD

A new manure holding pit was recently installed for Knob Farm, operated by Jeff Wriglesworth in partnership with father, Robert. The 210-acre farm (included rented land) is home to about 60 head of registered and grade Holstein (about 50 young stock). The Wriglesworths operated a double-4 milking parlor, and average 22,000 lbs., 800f, 691p. The farm, in the family since 1864 (a Century Farm application is in the works), switched from Guernseys in 1950s to Holsteins. Dale McCracken helps on a part-time basis, and Jeff's son, Brian, 10, helps on the farm. About 100 acres of the farm are in alfalfa, 80 acres are in corn, and 20 acres are in small grains, with the rest for haymaking.

Richard and Janet Kriebel, with family Kevin and Faith Schlichter, Scott, Wendy, and Kristen farm 350 acres one mile north of Benton. They milk 65 Holsteins that produce an average of 21,000 lbs. of milk for their raw milk jugging operation that includes a store on the farm. A farm family for 28 years, they raise corn and alfalfa and sell some alfalfa as a cash crop.

CRAWFORD

Apple Shamrock Dairy Farms, is owned and operated by Robert J. and Christine Waddell. It was purchased by Robert's parents, Robert E. and Lorna Waddell in November 1976. At the time it was a 248-acre farm with 105 Jerseys and one Holstein. Now, 16 years later, the farm is 374 acres and with the 500 acres rental property, the Waddells have roughly 350 acres corn, 400 acres hay (alfalfa, clover and variety), 80 acres of oats, and 50 acres soybean. In 1985, Robert and his father became full partners, having switched to an all Holstein operation with 330 Holsteins. They also turned the straight four milking parlor to a herringbone double five. Also added were four silos, two machinery sheds a heifer barn and a 140-cow freestall barn. All the buildings were upgraded, with work being overseen by Robert E., who had 25 years of construction experience prior to turning to dairy farming with his son. Currently the herd has been milking average of 23,000 pounds and are fed a totally mixed ration. Robert and Christine have three children, Josh 8, Joey 6, and Katie 3½.

Jay W. McCulloch and sons Neal and Owen operate the 400-acre (included rented ground) of Highland Vue Farms, Newville. Neal, with wife Linda and family Betsy, 9; Josh, 8; Katie, 7; and Nate, 4 work closely to rotate the milking schedule with Owen's family, including wife Henny and children Scott, 10 and Maryann, 7 to allow each family a weekend off every other week. The families on this Dairy of Distinction farm milk 75 registered Holsteins twice a day using a California straight-8 milking parlor. Young stock numbers 75. The herd, on DHIA, averages 20,000 lbs., 765f, 650p. The farm, in the family since 1922, used to bottle milk under the Highland Vue Farms label, and was all Guernsey. The farm became all-Holstein in 1984. Neal said that they milk early each day, at 3:30 a.m. and again at 2:30 p.m. to allow time in the evening for farm-related activities, including going to local ag events or church activities.

FRANKLIN

There were some rude awakenings in store for Rohart Farms, operated by the Robert Harding family in Mercersburg. For Robert's wife, Kathy, she admitted to Lancaster Farming that, moving the entire farm in 1989, "lock, stock, and barrel" from northern New Jersey was one thing, but encountering last year's drought was an experience, since the coastal state of New Jersey never experiences a drought. The Hardings own 337 acres and rent an additional 353 acres. They milk 157 registered Holsteins twice a day from a 9-unit U-shaped milking parlor. Young stock numbers about 160. Milking averages are 21,813 lbs., 809f, and 700p. The Hardings have two sons, Robert Jr., 29 and Thomas, 25. Kathy said they won the Dairy of Distinction honors in New Jersey in 1987. Full-time hired hand Curtis Carbaugh moved with the family from New Jersey.

ERIE

Walter and Lisa Royek own 62 acres and rent an additional 120 to raise feed for their 36 registered and grade Holsteins. Currently ther are just getting into raising registered Holsteins. Usually they have about 25 replacement animals coming on to keep the stanchion barn filled. With two silos for haylage and corn silage, they have been feeding a total mixed ration since Dec. 1 and said that they have been getting higher daily averages, but not quite peaking up to where they would like to be. The cows are kept in the barn most of the time, being turned out into an excercise pasture. The farm has a two-story white brick farmhouse and a red barn with white trim. A public roadway cuts between the house and the barn and they get a lot of traffic, but it is still a rural setting, though neighbors' homes are in the landscape. They keep the lawn mowed well and the Lake Erie-vicinity rolling farmland is offset with lots of flowers, apple, pear and maple trees. The open Victorian porch with its hanging baskets of geraniums and laticwork is repeated in theme with a mailbox built with the same ornate strenght. In addition to dairying, they rent out four acres of sugar maples for local maple syrup production. A several generation family farm, the Royeks took over the farm in 1983.

In 1974, Kenneth and Betty Mummert, Chambersburg, lost their 100-year old stall barn to a fire. Since then, they rebuilt the barn, and have made adjustments to help improve the surroundings and profitability of the farm enterprise. The Mummerts farm 125 acres and rent an additional 175 acres, and milk 110 registered Holsteins twice a day from a tiestall to pipeline. The farm, which also includes 115 heifers, uses a computerized feeder to provide two different grain mixtures to the milking stock. Kenneth's father also cropped the farm, which was all dairy in 1962 (and 100 percent Guernsey until 1970). The Mummert children also work on the farm, including Dale, 22; Allan, 27; and Cheryl Sears, 29.

FAYETTE

Working Acres Farm contains about 125 acres and is owned by the Work family. A lot of flowers are planted right next to a main road and the large yard on the level ground with the house and barn area is set off by a scenic background of interspersed trees and fields. It has been run by Harold and Diane Work for the past dozen years, but has been named Working Acres Farm since Donald's grandfather purchased and named it about 80 years ago. A small stream runs through the property where the Works milk and raise about 85 registered Guernsey cattle in a stanchion barn. It also has a free stall setup for heifers. The Works' children include Tonya, 27, and Timothy, 25. Tim works on the farm with his father and is currently building a house. Graydon Work, Donald's father is retired, but still manages to help out almost everyday.

INDIANIA

The Michael Zolocsik farm contains 87 acres with additional rented to raise and care for 50 head of milking dairy cattle, a mix of 30 grad Holsteins and Jerseys. The 22-stall stanchion barn was built in early 1976 and has an 8-foot ceiling. They milk in in the stanchion barn, switching groups. The Zolocsiks have been feeding wrapped bales and feed silage in winter. The also use pasture and have a couple of imonths to get their first rolling herd average, starting the herd on test within the past year. The farm is located in a rural area with the small town of Beyer nearby. Michael took out some overgrown fence rows around the house and barn and used the tractor to landscape. he said the entire family helps Rebecca "Becky", Michele 10, Michael 9, and Andy 4. The barn and machine sheds are painted red with white trim. A three-board while fence was put up all around and there's a long driveway into the farm, which is sort of on top of a hill, overlooking the town of Beyer. Michael was born on the farm in 1949. His grandfather bought it in the early 1900s and its been in the family since.

JEFFERSON

Although you can never know what it will bring, said Kevin Plummer, you must build gradually for the future. Plummer, together with wife, Holly and sons Kevin, Jr., 9 and Bryan, 6, as well as daughter Sherry, 8, rent this dairy of distinction farm. The 350 tillable acres is home to 53 milking registered and grade Holsteins and 35 replacement stock. Milking is twice a day from tiestall to pipeline. DHIA averages for the farm, according to Kevin, are about 18,470 lbs., 3.9%f (720f) and 3.3%p (603p). The farm, leased by Jean Hetrick, Summerville, maintains about 105 acres of corn, 30 acres of oats (for hay-making), 80 acres of alfalfa, and 125 acres of mixed hay (all baled).

Betsy Long believes that Stephen, her son, is a lucky man, ever since his complete recovery from a 4-wheeler accident that gave him a broken neck. "The doctor said his life was spared," she said. The accident, though traumatic, has not impared the operation of Marion Farm. In 1989, Stephen's father, Darwin, died, and his mother said she is proud of her son for taking over the farm operation. "Stephen's an exceptional boy," she said. "His ambition and his go-for-it attitude keep us going." Stephen, 23, together with fiancee Cindy Gray, farm 92 out of 208 acres in Mifflin and rent an additional 50 acres. Milking for the 55 registered and grade Holstein is twice a day from tiestall to pipeline, and the herd includes an additional 30 young stock. The farm, about 50 years old, has been a beef cattle operation and switched to all dairy in 1972. The Longs also are assisted by Ronald Stover, who works full time.

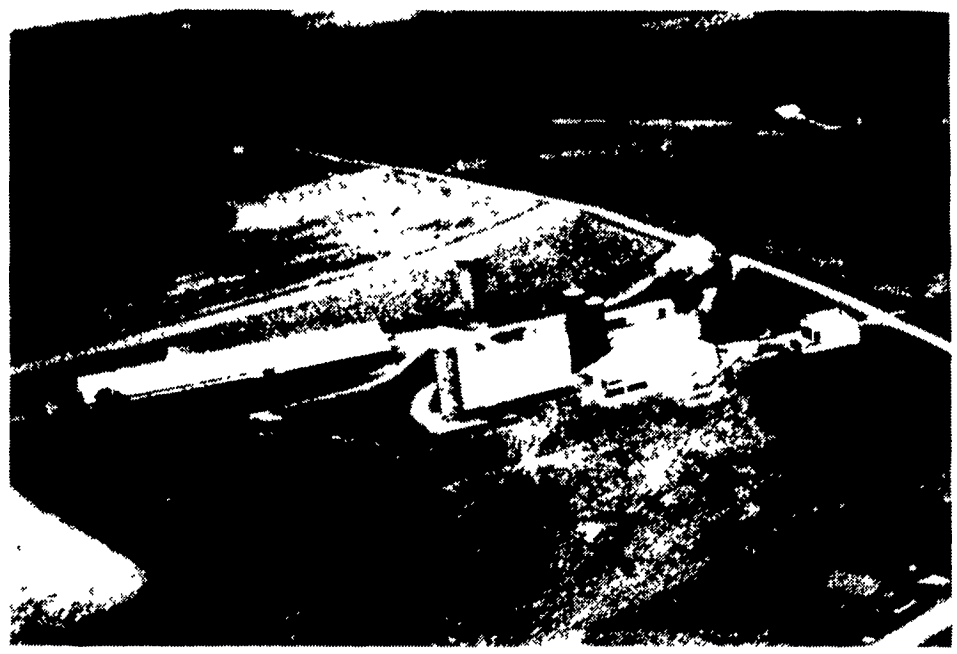
The historic Hans Herr house is virtually in the backyard at Howcrest Holsteins in Willow Street. Tourists come by and special events sometimes spill over from the John and Susan Howard farm into the parking lot of the Hans Herr house. It's one of the oldest remaining homesteads still standing and it was built by the religious leader who settled the area for his family. The current barn at Howcrest farm dates to 1866 and was built by John and Elizabeth Harnish. The milkhouse wall bears that date. It was remodeled in the 1960s and the stall and manger are in good shape. Last year, John installed better ventilation in the barn getting a dramatic increase in air-exchange. The barn has the round-edged roof and limestone walls. The house is also limestone. The road that cuts between their farm and a pasture end at the Hans Herr home, cutting down on the amount of traffic. The 70-acre farm is located near urban development on the south of Lancaster city. The Howards milk about 40 registered Holsteins and have a production average in the mid-20,000 pound area. John was recently elected to the board of directors of the National Holstein Association.



History abounds in many Pennsylvania farms and the Herr Hope Farms is also one which pays tribute to those who came before. A. Dale Herr, Kirkwood, said that the operation now is the result of combing three farms together for a total of 450 acres, 360 of which are tillable. The Herrs milk 94 registered and grade Holsteins and raise about 90 replacements in a 150 free stall barn, built in 1977, which is painted sky blue with white trim. But on the original farm there was a school house, which was separated from the farm property years ago. It still stands are a landmark. The bell from the school is still on the farm hanging from a structure in the Herr's front yard. A lot of Amish neighbors, the pastures and open areas also provide character to the farm scene. Rolling herd production at the farm is about 19,084 pounds of milk, with 723 pounds of fat and 606 pounds of protein. The house is an old limestone farm house. The four-acre yard has several large old maple trees, flower beds, two wagon wheels and a couple rocks from a field moved up to freestall and flowers planted around them. The farm is peopled by A. Dale, his wife P. Faye, and son Dale Jr. Working at the farm are nephew Roger Fryberger and herdsman Buzz Ratliff, also is asistant Christine Ambler.

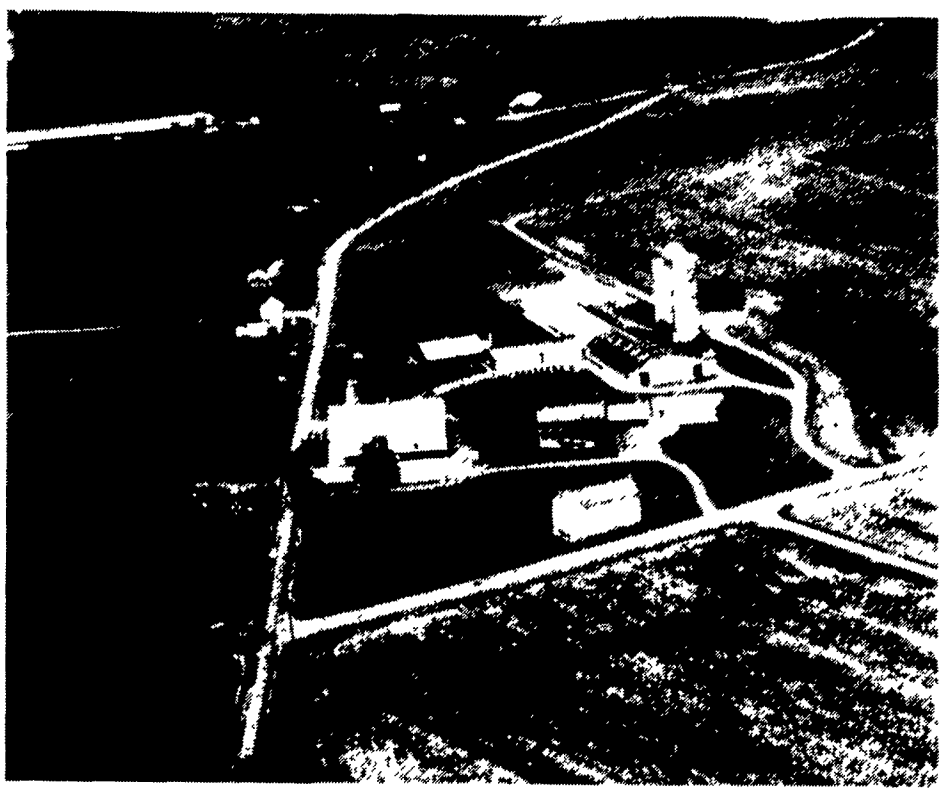
The John Shank Farm near Quarryville has almost a 100 of everything: 100 acres, 100 grade Holsteins, a 100-tie stall bank barn, etc. Actually the Shanks keep about 20 heifers and have about 30 acres of pasture. The house is close to the road with about a 50-foot setback. Everything is painted white, the wooden frame house to which vinyl siding which was added in the 1960s. The house a large porch with hanging flowers, a small stream runs through the heifer meadow, a number of flower beds including one that uses a short rail fence at corner of driveway, and maple and blue spruce trees decorate and protect the lawn. The Shanks have four children; Curtis, 12, Angie, 10, Jordon, 6, and Allison, 4.



A partnership family farm, Pine View Dairy Farm is a family business from manufacture to retail. Janet and J. Larry Hess and their children and John and Sylvia Hess and children operate a 120-head grade Holstein operation and bottle and sell the milk through their own on-farm dairy store along the New Danville Pike. The freestall operation was built in 1971 and caters to the public, having large windows on the parlor so that travelers can actually watch the cows being milked. Picnic tables and calf hutches on raised gravel beds also entertain and educate the public. It's the kind of place where little league baseball teams come to after a game for ice cream. The dairy is further decorated with landscaping around the edges of the store and the store sign, where the Dairy of Distinction sign is also to be hung.

On the Alv-Acres dairy farm of Alvin and Marian Martin, they farm 150 acres to provide feed for 70 Holstein milk cows and about that many additional young stock. Located off Rt. 322, west of Lebanon, this Dairy of Distinction farm has been in the family for 15 years. The herd average is 19,500 lbs. of milk produced in a stall barn. The Martin children involved in the operation are: Dawn, 16; Brian 13, and Beth 11.

LEHIGH

State Representative from the 187th District, Paul Semmel and his wife Nancy have a Dairy of Distinction farm in Lehigh County. The farm is located east of Schnecksville. Jerry Fleck, herd manager, reported that the 80 registered Holstein average 24,000 m; 800f; 740p. They farm 180 acres of corn and alfalfa, and the cows are housed in free-stalls and milked in a tie-stall barn. The Semmels have three daughters, Andrea, Lisa, and Shannon.

MERCER

James A. McCartney's 133-acre dairy farm is located in Carlton. He bought it in 1991, and milks 40 registered and grade Holsteins. In the dairy business all his life, he said he bought the place and remodeled it, from the inside of the barn, installing new stalls, remodeling the house, puting up new fences, painting the buildings, roofing all the buildings. "We did the whole nine yards," he said, adding that it was an old landmark farm and one of the first and better ones in the county. With his wife Dianne, three children Lane, 10, Jamie,6, and Brad son, 20, James is in partnership with his father. They have about 100 tillable acres and rent 50 adjecent acres and another 20 closeby. They raise 30 acres of corn and buy grain and baled hay. Although the herd isn't on test, he said the cows average between 65- to 70 pounds per day, with an estimated herd average of about 20,000 pounds of milk which he sells to Dean Foods, headquartered in Charlottsville. "We've always had pride in our places, but this place we really put a lot of work and effort into and we're really happy. And to maintain it, we're particular about how it looks."

Donald and Mary Cook have a small century farm located near Hazelton in Luzerne County. But they also rent 400 acres to raise feed for their Guernsey and Jersey dairy cows. Their son Ken is the seventh generation on the farm. Donald noted that there are only four farms in their valley now, but back in the early 60's there were 65 farms that produced milk. Housing and industrial development followed the new highways through the area.

MIFFLIN

To help improve the Brubemont Farm operations, a silo was installed by Paul and Helen Brubaker in 1988. The 93-acre farm (80 tillable) in Belleville milks 38 registered and grade Holstein twice a day from a tiestall to buckets. The herd, which includes 25 young stock, milks 18,500 pounds on DHIA. The 4th generation farm is operated by the Brubakers with help from daughter Dana, 19 and son Travis, 7.

SCHUYLKILL

The well-known Brown Swiss herd of William and Rhoda Danbert is located one mile north of Pine Grove. They milk 100 cows and have 200 head of young stock. They converted a turkey farm into a dairy operation in 1957, but the farm has been in the family nearly 100 years. With a top herd milking an average of 17,000 lbs. of milk and 650f, Danbert cattle are exported all over the world. The six children are Rhonda, Dean, Dennis, Ronald Ray, Anne, and Allen. And there are also 10 lovely grandchildren.

Clarence R. Plummer, together with sons Karl, Kris, and Kurt, operates Plummer's Farm in Friedens. The 130-acre farm (which also rents an additional 50 acres) milks 35 grade Holsteins and manages another 30 replacement stock. Milking is from a stanchion to a pipeline at 19,000 lbs.

Swamp Creek Swiss, Garrett, fosters a breed that, according to owner Robert Fritz, is known for its gentler demeanor and overall grazing ability. The farm manages about 115 tillable acres and rents an additional 60 acres. Swamp Creek milks about 50 head of registered Brown Swiss from a stall barn to a pipeline. The herd, on DHIA, averages 15,000 lbs., 600f, 550p, and has an additional 40 head of replacement stock. For a number of years, the herd was all-Holstein, but the owners switched 10 years ago. Robert farms with wife Judy and son Robert, Jr., 22 and daughter Jennifer, 19. They use an intensive grazing system and TMR, of which results are now "really starting to show," said Robert. During the winter, the Brown Swiss's coat changes color, and becomes darker, so they can absorb light and stay warm when grazing the 50 acres in individual paddocks on the farm. "The Brown Swiss never get excited," he said. When the Holstein cows are beginning to fade in milk production, according to Fritz, the Brown Swiss are at their peak — one of his cows is about 13 years old and milking well.

Landsdown Farm, owned by David P. Countryman and family, operates 375 acres (including rented land) in Berlin. Using a computerized feeder the past 10 years, David said he has seen overall heifer herd health improvement and better control of feed costs. The farm milks 90 registered Holsteins and manage another 95 head of replacement stock. Milking average is 21,800 lbs., 797f, 708p. The farm, in the family since 1833, has been all Holstein the past 40 years. David farms with wife Linda and children, Michael, 22; Michelle, 16; and Mindi, 10.

For many generations, North View Farm has been handed down through the mother's side, according to Mary Elizabeth Will. Husband Calvin M. Will and sons Jim, Dan, and John operate this Century Farm, which encompasses 785 tillable and 20 pasture acres in Berlin. North View Farm milks 100 head of registered Holsteins three times a day from a tiestall to pipeline. Milking averages are 25,485 lbs., 888f, 838p. The herd includes 50 replacement stock. Together with the three sons, four grandsons help out — Matt, 23; Corey, 22; Thad, 20; and Paul, 17. A granddaughter, Wendy Will, was state fair queen, and other grandchildren that also help include Julie and Josh.

Wayne D. and Nancy J. Schrock operate Sandyglen Farm in Berlin, which cares for about 190 tillable acres (250 altogether, including rented land). The Schrocks milk 75 head of registered Holsteins from a tiestall to pipeline, and herd averages are 18,145 lbs., 639f, 586p. The herd includes about 70 young stock. The farm, always a dairy, has been in the family since 1960. The Schrocks have two children who help on the farm, Betsy and Patsy.

There are 800 acres, of which 500 acres are tillable, on the Saxe Farm Inc. operation. The namesake for the Dairy of Distinction is Michael Saxe, but the entire family is part of the operation, located near Dushmore. More land is rented to help feed the grade Holstein they keep in a 10-year-old, 115-cow free stall barn. It's a family partnership between Michael, his wife Sandra and Michael's parents, Bill and Pauline. Also working the farm is Michael Jr., 23. Michael's grandmother Mary also lives at the farm. On a separate farm, the Saxes keep from 75 to 80 heifers. The farm is located in a high traffic area, right along Rt. 87. Two ranch-style homes and the two-story frame farmhouse house the families with son Michael currently building one for himself. Dairying isn't the only activity on the farm. Its 65-acre lake, visible from Rt. 87, and a campground also are nearby and campers sometimes come up to the farm to watch the milking operation. The date on the heifer barn is 1884, but Michaelf said the family had been farming the land before that. The heifer barn is wood, painted red with white trim and has a silver roof. The freestall building is metal sided.

Mount-Top Vue Farm contains 250 acres of land and 75 additional acres are rented to grow feed for the 60 Holsteins which have been averaging about 21,249 pounds of milk, 829 pounds of fat and 679 pounds of protein for Mark and Loretta Eby, of Canton. Mark bought out his father last year, ending a partnership which had started in 1983. His father had purchased the farm in 1969 and renovated after the 1972 flood. The area is rural, populated most by hunting and resort camps. The area doesn't get much traffic during the week. A large front lawn, flower beds around the buildings, trees and a tidy appearance set off the homestead.

Robert Silverstrim, runs Silverstrim Farm, near Dushmore, on 500 acres of land. He has been milking about 80 Holsteins with a few registered Red & White Holsteins purchased locally that he continues to breeds and colored the herd. The 80-stall stanchion barn is located close to the road and has a large lawn in front of the house. Robert, who never married, took over the farm in 1974, after his mother passed away. His father, who had purchased the farm when only 16 years old and still in school, had passed away in 1966. The original barn was converted after the flood in 1972. The house is a two-story white wooden frame structure. His sister Dorothy also lives at the farm. The rolling herd average is about 20,000 pounds of milk. He beefs a couple of bull calves for his own use every year. Four miles out of Dushore, the area is farming country and not pressured by residential development. There is a large manicured lawn, vegetable garden, a white board fence along the house and blue spruce lining the driveway, which is actually a township unimproved road, which splits the house from the barn. Newphew James Bryan, who lives next door, helps with milking.

Le-Ma-Re Farms is pronounced similarly to the woman's name, Leigh-Marie. It stands for the combined names of Erick Coolidge's father Lynn, Erick, mother Mary and sister Reba. The name doesn't exactly apply anymore because the family expanded over the years. Now it's Erick and his wife Dixie and their three children, Shalane, 15, Derick, 9, and Chelsie, 7, who are understood to be included in the farm name. A long bed of impatiens along the 7-year-old red barn, with a white-board fence make the farm standout. There's a large front lawn and the house is white with red shutters. The barn is white with red trim. There are about 720 acres of the land on the property, but not all are tillable. The barn was burned down seven years ago and was rebuilt. Located near Wellsboro on the west side of Rt. 287, it is visible from the main highway. The farm milks about 160 head of registered and grade Holsteins in two differenct dairy barns. The new barn holds 100 head. The other barn, located nearby, holds 48 head. The dairy is also a Century Farm.

WARREN

Sugar-Lott Farm (named because it is halfway between Sugar Grove and Lottsville) is a 300-acre farm owned by Florence Savko and operated by children George V. and Janet. The herd, built from scratch in 1953 (from nine cows of all different breeds, including Guernseys, Jerseys, Holsteins, and a Black Angus cow, according to Florence Savko), gradually became all-Holstein. Milking cows total about 45, with 85 young stock. Milking is twice a day from tiestalls to pipeline. The farm, which when purchased "really looked terrible," said Savko, was improved gradually — snakes and rocks had to be removed, and the barn buildings had to be refurbished. The farm also receives help from Terry Ewer, said Florence.

Herbert Guyer farms 106 acres on his farm and then rents some to keep his 27 registered milking Guernseys in top shape. He sells to Turnner's Dairy and it is sold for a protein load marketed for cheese manufacture. Right now he gets a premium of 22 cents a point over 3.2 percent protein on his herd which averages between 3.5 to 3.6 percent protein. His herd is not on test with Pa.DHIA, so he doesn't have specific details on production. The 27-stall stanchion barn was remodeled in 1963. He and his wife Helen raise all their own replacement animals and keep about 35 heifers. Helen does most of the flower and yard work and keeps up the 300-yard farm lane. A mile from Keystone State Park and along the road, they get viewed by a lot of people which is extra incentive to keep the place looking clean and well-cared for. "I like to see it myself looking good," said Herbert, 68, who has lived on the farm all his life. It's a family farm and his father moved to it in 1924, when Herbert was a month old. "My boys, two of them built houses on the farm, they work away, but help a lot and own a good part of the cattle and show them a good bit," he said. He has four boys and two girls. Carol Sulkosky does milking. The farm is also worth seeing for more than its beauty. Herbert said he has been using the intensive grazing system for about five years. "Actually, I always did it, because I had five paddocks and I always thought moving the cows was a good idea. I have 18 paddocks (now) and I move cows every two days."

WYOMING

At Amasa Hill Farm, located two miles west of Fleetville with an address of Jermyn, it's a family affair. Leslie and Jerilynn Johnson, along with David and Deb and Doug and Judi, farm 500 acres and milk 115 Holsteins. They have about the same additional number of young stock. David and Deb have two boys, Matthew 5, and Eric 2. Doug and Judi have three boys, Adam 7, Chad 4, and Ethan 2. These grandsons represent the fifth generation of Johnsons on the farm. They are active in the county DHIA and the Dairy Princess Program. In addition, to the dairy activities, they raise sweet corn as a cash crop for supermarkets and vegetable stands.

YORK

Surrounded by housing developments "on all edges," Jed Beshore, of Behsore Farms, New Cumberland, said that his farm is only "one of two left in the area. Dairy farming is about extinct here," he said. Jed said he turns down "lots of offers" to sell the land for development. The 167-acre farm, with an additional 40 woodland acres, includes 120 tillable and an additional 47 acres of rented land, milking 46 registered Holsteins twice a day from comfort stall to a pipeline. Milk averages about 21,800 lbs., and there are an additional 103 stock, including a couple of bulls. The farm, purchased by Jed's grandfather about 1917, is a combination of three separate farms, operated by Jed, wife Susan, and children Angie, 8 and "KC," 2.

Anderson Bros. Farm, operated by Mike and Bob Anderson, Wellsville, farms about 400 acres, including rented land. The farm milks about 30 registered Guernsey and Jersey cattle, and includes about 10 replacement stock. Milking is twice a day to a milking station. With help on the farm from Mike's wife, Peggy, she said the Guernsey's "are easier to work with," and said although they used to milk Holsteins, "we'd never go back."

AMINOTEK. FOR RECORD BREAKING PERFORMANCE.

FROM MASTER MIX®
AT A DEALER NEAR YOU.

AminoTek™ feeds are a blend of high-quality proteins which have complementary amino acid profiles. The AminoTek patented process is then applied to this blend, resulting in significantly increased levels of absorbable bypass protein and amino acids.

Central Soya research shows that cows fed AminoTek had a summit peak which was over 8 pounds higher than the peak of cows fed conventional protein feeds. Besides the obvious economic advantage which comes from increased milk production, other economic advantages may include improved milk composition and breeding performance.

For Dairy Farmers, Bigger Is Often Better

KARL BERGER
Special Correspondent

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Larger dairy farms tend to be more financially efficient than smaller ones, but the connection between herd size and profitability is far from clear-cut.

That's the conclusion that economists draw from several farm business summaries, which bring together financial data from hundreds of farms throughout the region.

For instance, data from a summary put together by ag economists at Penn State University shows an uneven correlation between profitability and herd size.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Farm Business Analysis in 1989, the latest year for which such data has been published, analyzed the records of 850 Pennsylvania dairy farms that used the Farm Management Services program of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association that year. (The analysis is published as Extension Circular 388.)

Farms in three of the four largest herd size categories had net returns per hundredweight of milk in the range of 26-44 cents, while farms in three of the four smallest herd size categories had negative net returns. On the other hand, farms in the 150-199 cow category showed a loss of 35 cents a hundredweight while those in the 70-89 cow category showed a nine cent gain.

The smaller farms tended to have lower cost of production numbers, but these were balanced by somewhat higher milk prices earned by the larger farms. (Presumably, this reflects a growing trend toward volume-based hauling discounts or premiums provided by handlers.)

Hence, major differences between farms in various herd-size categories did not show up after subtracting cash expenses from income from milk sales. They appeared only after trying to account for so-called "opportunity costs," such as family labor, management charges, and interest on equity. Other things being equal, these costs were spread out over more cows on the larger farms, the report noted.

Penn State ag economist Bob Yonkers notes that the report's measure of net returns must be put in perspective, since many dairy farmers don't pay themselves a management fee or pocket a return on investment. Nevertheless, these costs are a valid means of making comparisons between farms.

Dick Dennison, the manager of the PFA program, said the numbers seem to indicate that most farm families do well with certain levels of cow numbers.

"I've felt that a good family operation that numbers 65-85 head of cattle . . . can be a very efficient operation," he said. "If they have the management ability and enough family people involved, they can double the size and do a pretty good job."

Jim Russell, an extension economist at the University of Maryland, draws a different, albeit similar, conclusion. "In general, bigger is better, as long as you don't exceed your management ability," he said.

Numbers from the Northeast Dairy Farm Summary, published by the Farm Credit Bank of Springfield, tell much the same tale.

The summary presents data derived from more than 700 dairy farms in Pennsylvania, New York and New England, most of which use the bank's Agrifax accounting service.

An analysis of "profitability per cow," one measure of net earnings, indicated a higher average herd size among the top 25 percent of farms in the survey in 1990. At 118 cows, it's almost one-third higher than the 92-cow average for the bottom-ranking 25 percent of farms in the same year.

The summary also shows higher production-per-cow numbers in the top group. This, too, is an average; however, a graph of all the farms in the 1990 survey shows that there are very profitable farms with low production numbers and unprofitable ones with high numbers.

Cleave Snow, the Farm Credit analyst who prepared the summary, said, "There is no single measurable factor that explains why one dairy farm is more profitable than another. Profitability is not just a matter of excelling in one area, but rather better-than-average management of most aspects of the dairy farm business."

Yonkers said these numbers show that profitability is not just a simple matter of making more milk, whether by increasing herd size or production per cow.

"It's easy to make milk," he said, "but it's not so easy to make a profit making milk. I think I could go out and make milk, but I'm not convinced I could make money doing it. So I'm sitting here at my desk instead."

Farmers Can Benefit From Summaries

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Farmers who use institutionally-based financial management services have the bonus of access to the farm business summaries generated from this data.

Participants in the Agrifax accounting service offered by the Farm Credit Bank of Springfield can receive the Northeast Dairy Farm Summary. It is prepared from a sample of about 700 farms that use the service in nine states.

Pennsylvania dairy farmers have access to Agrifax through an agreement with the four local Farm Credit associations in Pennsylvania, which are actually part of the Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore.

Clients of the Farm Management Services program offered by the Pennsylvania Farmers Association receive an annual summary of data from about 2,700 commercial operations. The program is offered to Farm Bureau members in the commonwealth and neighboring states, according to manager Dick Dennison.

Farmers in Maryland also have access to FINPACK, a computerized financial analysis program offered by the Cooperative Extension Service, but the program does not yet offer comparisons to other farms using the service, according to Jim Downes, an extension farm management specialist based at the Wye Research and Education Center of the University of Maryland.

Farmers initially may turn to such services for help in preparing tax returns, Dennison said, but they come to rely on them for far more. His PFA program, for instance, does estate planning, provides profit statements for loan applications, and analyzes proposed changes in farm operations.

"Our job is to point out the weaknesses and strong points from a financial standpoint," he said.

The Bio-Milker features a synchronized automatic air-inlet valve just under the teat tip. Air enters only during the release phase. Also, vacuum is utilized to provide a biologically desired pressure release of teat tissue. Westfalia's Bio-Milker is the ultimate in milking quality.

Dairy Of Distinction Seeks Well-Kept Dairy Farms For 1993 Beautification Recognition Program

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

COVINGTON (Tioga County)—Already the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, Inc. is looking forward to next year when you will again have the opportunity to receive an award for your dairy farm. This program rewards clean, well-kept farmsteads to help with consumer acceptance of dairy products in the store.

State President Dan Baker, dairyman from Covington, Tioga County, said the program has been well received, and officers look forward to an excellent program again next year.

"There are plenty of good looking dairy farms out there that have not been judged," Baker said. "And even those who have entered the selection process in the past years, without success should enter again."

The program provides rewards of recognition to producers who maintain attractive production sites. This recognition benefits the entire dairy industry, as well as individual dairymen. Not only does the favorable publicity generated by the program in the general press help bring modern farm practices to the attention of urban people, farmers use the distinction to promote their own operation or seek and hire farm labor.

Paul Nichols, the secretary for the Pennsylvania program, said applications may be sent to him any time after January 1, 1993. Deadline for applications is April 15. Judging is completed in May and is based on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds, and surroundings. The states are divided into districts and a local committee oversees the program in each district.

A team of judges designated by the local committee visits each farm and uses a score sheet to rate each farm. In Pennsylvania, in addition to this team of judges, the sanitarian for the farm's cooperative or dealer-handler is asked to be part of the judging process.

"One of the things I always tell people is that even though they may not now have the most fancy place, they can work toward the principles of the Dairy of Distinction program," Nichols said. "By doing this, they work toward a goal that encourages consumers to use more dairy products."

Winners receive a colorful, 18x24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to be placed at the entrance to the farmstead. In addition, as in past years, an 11x14-inch color portrait of the farm will be given by Lancaster Farming to each winning farm in the Pennsylvania program.

"As a dairy farmer, you work hard all year long, taking care of your farm," said Helen Fountain, program executive secretary. "In addition to managing your herd, there are lawns to mow, flowers to plant, and overall maintenance to keep farm buildings looking great. You deserve to be recognized for all the hard work, dedication and pride you put into your farmstead.

"It's time you and your farm received some recognition for your hard work. The coveted Dairy of Distinction award will give you that recognition, In addition your attractive farm will enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk, thereby stimulating milk sales and encourage public support for the dairy industry."

Active dairy farms in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania are eligible to apply for the award. Criteria for Dairy of Distinction awards include: clean and attractively finished buildings; neat landscaping, ditches, roads and lands; and well-maintained fences. Cleanliness of animals, barnyard, feed areas, as well as manure management, are also taken into consideration.

Applications are available from each state's program secretary or local cooperative extension. In New York, contact Evelyn Lightfoote, 3053 Depew Road, Stanley, N.Y. 14561. Phone: (716) 526-6654. In New Jersey, contact Angust Knispel, RD 1, Box 325, Pittstown, NJ 08867. Phone: 201) 735-4989.

In Pennsylvania, you may contact Paul Nichols, American Dairy Association/Dairy Council, Tower Business Building, 239 Schuyler Ave., Kingston, PA 18704.

Bush Valley Farm in Blair County and owned by Debra and Kenneth Bush family at Williamsburg is an example of the farms that were designated Dairy of Distinction last year. You are invited to send an application to enter the program for 1993.

Dairy of Distinction
Dairy Farm Beautification Program

Pennsylvania Districts

Pennsylvania is divided into ten districts. Approximately 10 Dairy of Distinction awards will be made each year in each district. There is no cost to the applicant.

Pennsylvania area chairpersons are: District 11, Leslie Firth; District 12, Wally Jackson; District 13, Susan DuJour; District 14, Janet and David Hileman; District 15, Norman Coons; District 16, Robert and Bernice Gable; District 17, Larue Thomas; District 18, Allen Roszel; District 19, Lisa Risser; and District 20, Russell Rooks.

As a winner, you will receive a certificate and a nice metal sign to install at the end of your farm lane. In addition, LANCASTER FARMING will present a color farm portrait print to each of this year's winners in Pennsylvania. If your farm is a winner, be sure you or your district committee takes a color photograph of your farm and sends the negative and proof to LANCASTER FARMING in time for the awards ceremony.

EBY LIVESTOCK TRAILERS

This 24' Ruffneck from M.H. Eby is an investment in quality.

Dairy of Distinction
Dairy Farm Beautification Program

Congratulations Dairy of Distinction Award Winners

A new aluminum trailer, like this one from M.H. Eby, Inc., looks bright and clean when it comes from the factory. The surprising thing is it stays bright and clean for years — with very little maintenance.

Aluminum offers another big advantage over conventional wood and steel trailer construction. It's lighter — as much as 35% lighter.

Eby trailers are designed strong and built tough. Each trailer is custom made to your specifications.

Proof of durability for Eby trailers is their resale value. At five years old, many sell for as much as 90% of their original price.

Please call or write for more information and the name of the dealer nearest you.

Heifers: Better Things Come In Big Packages

Build Your Herd With

A First-Calf Heifer Needs A Big Frame:

- to support milk production
- for calving
- to compete with her herdmates at bunk time
- for greater capacity to consume feed

Heifers that are close to their mature body size at first calving produce more milk as the graph below illustrates

Why Feed Framework Heifer Feeds?

Faster Growth
Growth rate increased 13% in Nutrena research

Efficient Growth
With "coupled" protein and energy sources, Framework feeds improved feed conversion 9% in Nutrena research.

Balanced Nutrition
Protein, energy, mineral and vitamin balance that's correct for growing heifers.
